Who Sold the Lady's Liquor?
Hard Fight in Mexico
The Power of Comparison
Length of Life

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

MR. SMITH and Mr. Bell went to a party. Mr. Smith got drunk, Mr. Bell remained sober.

Mr. Smith, according to evidence, was determined to take home a lady brought by Mr. Bell. Followed a discussion. Mr. Smith fell, or was pushed, cracked his skull, died.

The jury refuses to indict Mr. Bell. Men who drink bootleg liquors must take the consequences, unless actual murder can be proved.

What about the gentleman that sold to the "Lady prominent in Park ave. social circles the liquor that Mr. Smith drank before he was killed?"

Nobody seems to be interested in him.

Rebels in Mexico appear to have the better of an important battle with federal troops. Bloody fighting is reported.

The Associated Press, referring to the revolutionists as "religious rebels," describes them rushing into battle with desperate courage, shouting, "Vive Cristo Rey." (Long Live Christ the King.)

Those that possess the power of comparison are strong. Shakespeare causes Caesar to compare himself with the northern star, and compares the feeling of jealousy to a toad, living upon the vapor of a dungeon.

"Dapper Dog Collins," whom the police call a professional swindler, says of detectives in general: "Those babies couldn't detect a horseshoe in a plate of hash."

That's also a striking comparison.

In France, citizens wait in line to buy stock in a French Ford Company. More than 100,000 applications have been received.

In Holland, citizens have subscribed for 60 times as much stock as Ford has for sale.

Very pleasant compliments for Henry Ford.

How maddening it must be for some of the get-rich-quick printing gentlemen to see such a marvelous opportunity wasted. If they were Ford they would print stock that anybody could buy, and then more.

Professor Michelson of Chicago University, a real scientist, says every man should live "as long as he finds the world amusing." Then he might as well die.

A man should live as long as he can, making himself useful as long as he can, and then set a good example of patience, with things as they are, continuing to take an interest in the universe when he can no longer be useful.

We are here now, we see the earth and the stars, and can at least admire the inconceivable wisdom and power that manages nebulae and ant hills. We don't know what we shall see after this.

Chicago's aldermen decide that ladies insist on taking off almost everything, when they go swimming; it is hopeless to control them. If they wear "something or other" it will be all right in Chicago this season.

The world has traveled far from the day when women were driven from public beaches if they wore no stockings. Now all the backbone may show, except the last joint.

No need to worry, however. Give woman the right to wear nothing at all and she will immediately cover herself from head to foot. That's her nature.

Uncle Sam is a prosperous old gentleman, and his children, including the corporations, are also prosperous.

Corporation profits for 1928 are figured at eleven thousand millions of dollars by the income tax gentlemen.

Cigarettes alone paid in the first nine months of the current fiscal year $247,160,000, which is $23,635,000 more than the preceding year. Young people at least have not neglected their cigarette smoking duties.

Shortly thereafter, and following a meeting with her betrothed,

'EL' BILL A GRAB, SAYS TWOHIG

A direct charge that the new Boston Elevated bill is an "open door" through which the Power Trust would step to gobble up the road was made today at the hearing on the measure before the joint Ways and Means Committee by Representative James J. Twohig of South Boston.

Rep. Twohig, foremost public ownership advocate in the Legislature, said:

"It's the open door they want to leave for the Power Trust to come

DRY AGENTS ON LEVIATHAN

New York, April 26—A big force of customs inspectors, augmented by several agents, was prepared today to frisk everyone of the 1400 passengers aboard the Leviathan when the vessel docked. The government men were determined that none of the passengers or members of the crew bring any liquor ashore on this first western trip of the Leviathan as a wet ship under private ownership.

Plane Flies 4131 Miles in 50 Hours

London, April 26 (AP)—The Royal Airforce plane, seeking to break long-distance flight records from England to Calcutta, landed at Karachi, India, at 1:15 p. m., British summer time, it was announced today by the Air Ministry.

The distance flown from England was about 4131 miles and the time elapsed, 50 hours 45 minutes.

Thugs Miss $32,000 in Daring Holdup

New York, April 26 (INS)—Three bandits who got a gold watch and chain and $260 in cash in a daring holdup today, missed $32,000 in jewelry in a bureau drawer. The scene of the holdup was the apartment of Clayton D. Quay, investment broker at 21 East Eighty-seventh st. The bandits lined up Quay, Mrs. Quay and a maid at the point of guns.

Man He Arrested Becomes a Client

Augusta, Me., April 26—Six years ago as a deputy sheriff, Carl A. Fellows of this city obtained the conviction of Wallace Cormier for illegal sale of liquor. In municipal court he was counsel for the same man on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. An appeal was taken for a sentence of two months in jail and a fine of $250.

We Need Laws We Can Respect, W. R. Hearst Replies to President

(Reprinted from Kansas City Star of April 25)

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S address on law enforcement at the Associated Press luncheon in New York was a shot in the air—a blank cartridge discharged against a blank wall.

Everybody knows that the laws ought to be enforced.

Everybody knows that the President ought to enforce the laws as far as comes within the obligation of his office.

Everybody knows that the laws ought to be respected; just as everybody knows that women ought to be respected, and that women are respected by every decent man.

But occasionally there is a woman who is not respected, who is not respectable, who does not respect herself, and whom no one in his heart can respect, no matter what outward observance of respect he may render.

And so, occasionally, there are laws which cannot be respected no matter how they are observed by good citizens.

And there are lawmakers who cannot be respected—such, for instance, as gentlemen who impose dry laws upon the land and carry whiskey flasks in their hip pockets.

RESPECT for law is a good thing when the laws and lawmakers are worthy of respect.

But if the American people had had respect for all laws, good or bad, there would have been no Boston Tea Party to protest against the invasion of the rights and liberties of our people; no Declaration of Independence to declare liberty and equality as the inalienable rights of man; no United States of America to establish liberty and equality as the foundation stones of republican government; and in that sad case, no President Hoover, but only a certain Herbert Hoover, eminent engineer, and a loyal and law-respecting subject of His Majesty King George V.

Of course, there should be respect for law in the abstract, but first there should be laws which deserve respect.

It is better to respect the fundamental American principles of liberty, equality and justice than

HUBWOMEN IN CULT SWINDLE

Greater Boston women, a majority widows and many of them wealthy, are victims in the alleged $1,000,000 "cult swindle" in which the Attorney-General of New York today moved against Rev. Fenwicke Holmes, "a divine healer."

The cult services conducted in Boston, New York and other cities by Rev. Holmes were but a cloak for the sale of worthless stock in a worthless California mine to women who fell easy prey to the promise of quick riches made by the cult director his brother, William H. Holmes, and William G. Carr, according to Atty. Gen. Hamilton Ward.

71 KILLED IN 2 TORNADOES

Atlanta, April 26 (AP)—Seventy-one persons were known to have been killed in a series of tornadoes that late yesterday and last night struck five Georgia and two South Carolina communities.

Dr. J. H. Whitside of Statesboro, Ga., telephoned the state board of health today that 30 persons were killed and hundreds injured there. He requested 60 doses of anti-tetanus serum.

Earlier reports placed the number of dead there at twelve.

The first of what witnesses said were two district twisters struck at Cochran, Ga., killing five and leaving approximately 50 injured, three perhaps fatally.

Jumping to Dexter, Ga., the wind demolished homes, leaving four dead and a score of injured before rising to dip again at Rents, Ga., where one was killed.

The tornado then swirled into South Carolina and struck near Spartanburg where four were killed, and at Pelzer, leaving two dead.

After a spectacular daylight chase in which shots were fired, a truck with 300 gallons of alcohol was overtaken and two men arrested today, according to the police, on Lowell st., Reading.

The arrested pair were booked as Nicholas Manis of Spring st., Nahant, and James Katsiastas of Nashua, N. H., both charged with illegal transportation.

Shots were fired by a federal agent, who participated in the pursuit with three Reading patrolmen: William F. O'Brien, Francis L. Johnson and Frank Fisher.

TWOHIG BRANDS 'L' BILL 'OPEN DOOR' FOR GRAB BY POWER TRUST

in and gobble up the road for another outlet for its current."

He then proceeded to point out that the bill provides for private purchase of the road after 10 more years of public control; that the company would not be an attractive bargain to private interests at a straight investment, and that therefore the purchase clause was simply an inlet for power interests who would profit by selling the road electricity.

SHOWS WANING SYSTEM

"The report of the public trustees for 1928," said Twohig, "shows a decline in the income of $350,262, or one per cent, compared with the previous year.

"Revenue passengers carried decreased 1.34 per cent on the Boston Elevated. Street railways of the country showed a decrease in this respect of two per cent.

"These fewer passengers were given 647,162 more miles of service than in the preceding year.

"Now proponents of this measure argue that private interests would step in and take over the road at the end of the 10-year extension of public control. From the facts I have cited it is clear that no honest-intentioned private company would want the road.

"SHATTUCK WAS RIGHT"

"Yet proponents have the effrontery to say a private company would come in. Chairman Shattuck was absolutely right—it is the open door they want, to have the Power Trust come in."

Twohig also criticised President Gaspar G. Bacon of the Senate "for being so much offended at Mr. Shattuck's reference to the Power Trust." He made reference to Bacon's statement that confidence must be placed in the officials who will be in authority of the Elevated's destiny, or else confidence may as well be discarded in popular government altogether.

"How much confidence did President Bacon have in the early part of this year when he cast a direct reflection on the Legislature, seeing a 'danger' of reduction in the fare, etc."

WARNS OF HUGE "STEAL"

The setup of a metropolitan council to check and regulate the public directors of the road, Twohig declared, would simply mean, with each mayor and board of selectmen, a pet scheme of their own, a "log-rolling" proposition.

As an instance, he said that Mayor Larkin of Medford was for the bill only if rapid transit goes to Medford.

"He's willing to pay $25,000 for what will cost millions," Twohig said, and declared it terrible to think of men of the character and standing of Bacon, Gow and Harriman lowering themselves "to back such a proposition."

The speaker denounced the clause that would give preferred stockholders of the road $130 for their stock when all they are entitled to under the 1923 public option provision is $100.

"Nobody knows what the unassenting stockholders would get later in court proceedings," he warned. "This is nothing but a huge, gigantic steal, the greatest ever attempted on Beacon Hill."

CITES HIS OWN BILL

Twohig held that complete public ownership is the only solution of the tangle. Because of his own educational limitations, he declared, his bill for bringing about public ownership is not perfect, but does contain the fundamental principles.

"I don't claim to be able to draw up something that a corps of skillful lawyers have been unable to do in the last five years," he said.

Twohig charged that the bill came out of the committee on metropolitan affairs, not on its merits, but on its demerits.

"That committee was unable to analyze its provisions and reporting it to your committee was considered the easiest way of disposing of it," he said.

"I appealed to the members not to send it on with a favorable report, but was overridden."

COMMENTS ON VOTE

Senator Hollis of Newton, he continued, voted for the bill only after a provision was put in limiting assessments for extensions and improvements to but two wards of his city. And Representative Whelden of Charlestown, he stated, was induced to give his vote "because of the false promise that the bill is take down the El structure in Charlestown."

Only 56 sections in the bill, he revealed, only eight sections were discussed by the committee before reporting it.

"Not more than about three members of the committee on metropolitan affairs can tell you what any section of the bill means outside of possibly the first two or three."

President Bacon of the Senate, who was chairman of the special commission which sat on the Elevated problem, during the recess of the Legislature, Twohig asserted, was last at a moment in favoring the redrafted bill now before the committee as he was the original bill.

"None of the committee on metropolitan affairs has read this bill redrafted three times, yet they reported this measure which means approximately $250,000 of expenditures," he charged.

"I believe that the metropolitan affairs committee was stacked to put over a bill regardless of what it contained. It ought to be entitled 'The If and When Bill.'

"It has more jokers in it than any piece of legislation that has ever come to my attention up here."

"10-CENT FARE BUNKUM"

The section which forbids the adoption of a higher fare than 10 cents, he charged, "sounds lovely to the car-rider on its face" but in reality is "pure bunkum." He pointed out that there is nothing to prevent higher fares through zoning. He also claimed there are two other loopholes in the bill to evade the 10-cent limitation provision.

"Their purpose was to kid the public," he declared.

Taking up the provision which deals with the levying of 35 cents on a thousand on the communities for improvements, he claimed there is no protection against treating this amount.

"That 35 cents was based on extensions totalling $55,000,000," he said. "In this redraft the extensions will amount to probably $250,000,000. Yet it still contains the 35-cent limit."

Taking down the El structure in Charlestown, he said, is "only a gesture," as it would mean putting in a subway costing at least $70,000,000.

100 AUTOISTS FINED IN COURT

Today was 'automobile day' in Chelsea district court, more than 100 cases of violation of the motor vehicle laws being head by Judge Cutler. Fines averaging from $5 to $20 were imposed.

One of the defendants, Sam Mindick, of 51 Lorne st., Dorchester, protested that not he, but his brother, was the person who should have been summoned to court.

"Your name is Samuel Mindick, isn't it?" he was asked.

"No. My brother's name is Samuel. I'm only Sam."

And so it was later proved.

Stockholders Object to Making Change

Minority stockholders of the Nonquitt Spinning Company of New Bedford are of the opinion that the $500,000 in cash of this company would be wasted if the company goes into the weaving business. A statement to that effect was given by Hugh Ogden, their counsel, before Judge Bishop of the Suffolk Superior Court.

The case came before the court on the petition for a temporary injunction to restrain the company from taking such action pending a full hearing of the matter on its merits.

LAW GIVES STATE FULL CONTROL

tective legislation generally extending the commission's regulatory authority, as recommended by Governor Charles W. Tobey, was accomplished in spite of the most active lobby the State capitol has has seen in recent years.

In spite of this long stride, however, Governor Tobey is reported to have expressed himself as "grave" account of conditions disclosed. One important bill which was part of the program to strengthen the hand of the people failed of passage.

PROTECTS SMALL COMPANIES

Outstanding measures passed in accordance with the governor's policy of power supervision included a bill requiring public utility companies to renew or extend power contracts with other companies upon terms and conditions that the Public Service Commission shall order, for the public good."

This measure assured protection for the people against a purchase of current by subsidiary companies at exorbitant prices which might in turn be leveled on consumers by the distributing concern.

It was also designed to prevent the "freezing out" of non-generating companies if terms for current cannot be agreed upon between them and the agency selling the power.

Because public utilities sought legislation permitting the governor and council to authorize taking of State land for flowage purposes, another protective bill was enacted.

STOCK VALUATIONS

The Public Service Commission pointed out that legislation such as asked for by the interests would create a motive for utility interest in political affairs, and, accordingly, a bill was passed providing that the land grant may be made only with the decision of the commission that the grant is for the public good.

Expenses of investigation by the State commission, according to the terms of another new law, will be borne by the private company which, through its acts with regard to rates or other matters, cause the investigation to be made. This measure takes from the State the burden of expenditures for experts, accountants and other things.

Passage of another bill places further limitations on security issues of full water-power development; allowing only surplus power, which finds no market in the state, to cross the borders; continuance of the plan of giving exclusive rights to serve specific territories; effective regulation and control of rates and service to protect consumers.

Policeman Checks Blaze on Sign

Previous experience with electric sign fires enabled Traffic Officer Cecil Craig to prevent a serious fire in the store of the Macy Drug Company at 2324 Tremont st.

When a short circuit set the big electric sign in front of the store on the corner, Craig promptly disconnected several wires and extinguished the blaze. He was scorched about the hands by the fire, but after treatment, returned to his post at Tremont and Stuart sts.

Hearst Answers Hoover on Respect for Law

it is to respect laws which infringe upon these inalienable rights of man.

Of course, there should be respect for the lawmakers; but how can lawmakers be respected who first take a drink and then pass a law imposing five years penal servitude and $10,000 fine upon any citizen who takes a drink, and then go back and take another drink out of a bottle of whiskey which they have smuggled through the customs under their privilege as Congressmen?

Of course, law-enforcement machinery should be respected; but how can it be respected when the head of the machine tells the law-enforcement officers that the recent liquor law must not be enforced against all the community, but only against part of the community—must not be enforced in all cases, but only in some cases—and that the discretion for its enforcement lies in the hands of the law-enforcing officers?

How wide open this decision leaves the door to blackmail and bribery and corruption, when corruption is already rotting the social and political fabric of the nation!

How this decision shatters the foundation stones of the republic!

The cornerstone of liberty has already been reduced to dust.

And now another cornerstone—Equality before the Law—is crumbling before our eyes.

President Hoover says in the course of his speech at the Associated Press luncheon:

"We have reason to pride ourselves on our institutions and the high moral instincts of the great majority of our people."

Then later on the President complains of—

"The possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people."

THERE is nothing the matter with the institutions we have—or, rather, used to have. They embody the basic principles of liberty, equality and equity upon which rest the peace and happiness of mankind.

We "pride ourselves upon our institutions," as the President truly says.

There is nothing the matter with them if we can only preserve them.

There is nothing the matter with our people. They are a great people and a good people, with "high moral instincts," as President Hoover describes them.

If, therefore, there is, as President Hoover fears, "the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities of our people," then there must inevitably be something the matter with the law.

If there is no sufficient respect for law when our institutions are sound and our people are good, then the inescapable conclusion is that our laws must be bad.

If there is "the possibility that respect for law as law is fading from the sensibilities" of our highly moral people, then it must be that the laws, or a considerable portion of them, are unworthy of respect by a highly moral people.

That is the unavoidable conclusion, and that conclusion makes the character of our laws the crucial question for the American people to consider.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S SPEECH is a shot in the air—a blank cartridge fired at a blank target—because it avoids the crucial question of the cause of law infraction and concerns itself only with the superficials of law enforcement and of penalties for law infraction.

President Hoover forgets the old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and that if an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, an ounce of prevention is worth ten pounds of penalties which do not cure.

President Hoover says:

"We have two immediate problems before us in government, to investigate our existing agencies of enforcement and to reorganize our system of enforcement."

He overlooks entirely the crucial question of reforming our LAWS and returning in our law construction and law enforcement to the fundamental American principles of liberty, equality and essential equity.

Surely, there is something the matter with the law when the law-makers themselves break it as soon as it is made. Surely, there is something the matter with the law when the law enforcement officers may decide in their discretion to whom it shall apply.

Surely, there is something the matter with the law when a Cossack crew of enforcement officers violate all popular rights and liberties and break into a man's house on a warrant obtained on perjured testimony, and beat him into insensibility, and shoot his wife to death as she sits at a telephone trying to get help for her husband.

PRESIDENT HOOVER complains of the small percentage of convictions of criminals under existing laws, and asks for severer penalties, apparently unconscious of the well-known fact that severe penalties, out of harmony with the sentiment of a community, always result in fewer convictions and greater encouragement of crime; because no criminal is deterred by a law if he is not afraid of conviction under the law.

President Hoover recognizes "the vast sums that are poured into the hands of the criminal classes by the patronage of illicit liquor by otherwise responsible citizens."

But he does not seem to realize that these vast sums have financed the underworld, and are chiefly to blame for the wide extension of crime and the effective organization of the criminal classes in all lines of criminal endeavor.

How great that extension of crime and that organization of criminal classes are can best be told in the President's own words when he says:

"Twenty times as many people in proportion to population are lawlessly killed in the United States as in Great Britain."

"At least fifty times as many robberies in proportion to population are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries."

"Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world."

In spite of all this, the President apologizes for the contaminating conditions under prohibition and declares that "It is only a section of the invasion of lawlessness."

CAN it be that the Jones law is in accord with the President's idea of proper legislative procedure—the Jones law, which is widely regarded as the most menacing piece of repressive legislation that has stained the statute books of this republic since the Alien and Sedition laws under John Adams, which permanently put the Federalist party out of power and installed the Democratic-Republican party under Jefferson to preserve the rights and liberties of American citizens?

The Jones act calls for more vigorous and more vindictive enforcement of the sumptuary laws.

The Jones act increases the penalties until the citizen who commits what can only be regarded as a misdemeanor is punished for a high crime.

The Jones act adds persecution to prohibition, and in our principles of government substitutes fanaticism for freedom.

The Jones act destroys the American ideals of liberty which have been our boast and our boon, and imposes upon our people the European idea of governmental tyranny which our Fathers came to this country to avert and avoid.

WITHAL, the Jones act will defeat its own narrow purposes, and instead of creating a condition of rigid restriction, will cause—

FIRST, fewer convictions because of over-severe penalties;

SECOND, more killings for fear of possible infliction of the severe penalties;

THIRD, more corruption to avoid arrests and possible convictions;

FOURTH, higher prices for liquor on account of greater risks, and consequently greater profit in crime;

FIFTH, more violence and more violation of popular rights;

SIXTH, more conflict between the extremes of bone-head drys and bullhead wets, with more distress and discomfort to the moderate, temperate, peace-loving, liberty-loving mass of our citizenship;

SEVENTH, more cant and hypocrisy in public life, more insincerity among public men, and more disposition on the part of the public to consider the law-makers of the land a lot of fools and frauds and fanatics—all of which could be avoided if the party in power would remember that it was elected on the Republican ticket, and not on the Prohibition ticket, and that it could best serve its party and its country by restoring the principles of liberty and equality and justice for which our Fathers fought.

FOR be it remembered that our Fathers shed their blood, not for LAWS, but for PRINCIPLES.

AMES-CUSHING ENGAGEMENT IS BROKEN

plans for the wedding were dropped.

"The engagement was broken by mutual agreement," the society girl told the Boston Evening American today in New York where, with her mother, she is living for the present at 1010 Fifth ave.

"I have nothing to say, other than that there will be no wedding," said young Cushing, son of Mrs. J. Denison Sawyer of New York, and the late Howard G. Cushing, famous artist.

The breaking of the engagement, following so close upon the heels of Miss Ames' return from Europe, gave rise to speculation as to whether her step-brother was connected with it in any way.

MUCH TIME IN N. Y.

Their engagement was announced on January 11 by Mrs. Ames, who since the marriage of her son, Frederick Lothrop Ames, amateur aviator and sportsman, to Mlle. Maurice Mozette, former night club entertainer, has spent a great deal of time in New York.

Miss Ames made her debut during the social season of 1926-27. Her mother gave several house parties for her at their Commonwealth ave. home and at their North Easton estate. She has been entertained extensively in Newport, where the Ames have another summer home.

Young Cushing was graduated from Harvard last June. He is a member of the A. D. Club of Cambridge, and of the Harvard and Knickerbocker clubs.

SHE MAY TOUR EUROPE

His mother was Mrs. Ethel Coohrane of Boston and he is a nephew of Grafton D. Cushing.

The wedding was planned for Trinity Church, North Easton, at 3:30 o'clock on the afternoon of June 8, in order to allow Boston and New York guests attending the Milton wedding of Miss Ellen Hallowell and Harold Irving Pratt, Jr., on the same day, to be present at both events.

Miss Ames has no immediate plans for the future as a result of the breaking of her love troth, she told the Boston Evening American today.

Her mother had planned an extensive travel tour abroad following her wedding, and many believe this trip will be advanced and that her daughter will accom-

Durant Wins on Building

After a battle of two years, during which it went down to defeat on four occasions, Durant, Inc., won its fight to erect a women's clubhouse and recreation center to a height of 155 feet at 400 Huntington ave., Back Bay, the site of the old American League baseball grounds.

According to a decision recorded late yesterday in the building department by Miss Elizabeth M. Herlihy, secretary of the City Planning Board, the Boston Board of Zoning Adjustment, by a vote of 9 to 2, finally agreed to approve the Durant application.

Only the central portion of the building with a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of 60 feet will be permitted to rise to a height of 155 feet. But under the general law the rest of the building may go as high as 100 feet, provided it is set back from the sidewalk.

'DIVINE HEALER' IN $1,000,000 CULT SWINDLE

pelling Holmes and his associates to show cause why they should not be restrained from selling stock and why a receiver should not be appointed for Fremont Grand, Inc., holding company for the mining stock.

Many Boston women invested thousands of dollars in stock of the mine when Rev. Holmes conducted services here at a Boston hotel in 1923. From this they never received a cent in dividends.

The New York state Attorney-General said today he held a secret hearing of several wealthy women who told of meeting Holmes at his cult services, which he said were to bring science and religion into harmony, and of later buying stock in the mines.

PAID $2000 FOR STOCK.

But a few of the Boston investors are known and many are reluctant to come forward.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Taylor of 677 Dudley st., Roxbury, who with her daughter, Miss Maude P. Taylor, told today of her meeting with Rev. Holmes and his brother when they appeared in Boston.

"My daughter was deeply interested in psychology and metaphysics," said Mrs. Taylor. "She was employed by William Holmes for some stenographic work and we both attended the lectures by Rev. Fenwicke Holmes.

HOOF AND MOUTH ALIBI

"One day we met the Rev. Holmes through his brother and soon after that we invested $2000 in the stock.

"This was in November and we were promised big dividends by next July. They were not forthcoming then nor did we ever receive any money from the 'investment.'

When investors became impatient over non-return on their money, William Holmes was besieged with complaints, but had many novel excuses, the attorney general charges.

To one, he wrote: "The delays have occurred by reason of hoof and mouth disease, draught and other disturbances of nature."

HIS EXPLANATION:

To Mrs. Taylor he wrote:

"Dear Mother—Add a little conciousness of good day by day to all we long to see happen for the good of the world and our own special dividends by your clear vision."

This "explanation" caused Mrs. Taylor to write to President Hoover, then secretary of commerce, who referred her to a San Francisco mining engineer named Rogers in the mine in which her money was invested.

On the property, represented to investors as being worth $100,000,000, the engineer made the following report:

"I think it extremely doubtful as to the property ever becoming a paying venture. It has been known for many years in California, and has been presented to some of the best-known mining men, who have declined to consider it."

Little or no work has been done on the mine for years.

WHAT ABOUT THE CULT?

Of the cult conducted by Rev. Holmes, who is an ordained Congregational minister and pastor of the Church of the Healing Christ, Atty.-Gen. Ward alleges:

"Fenwicke Holmes and William Holmes were teachers and instructors of divine science, teaching metaphysical healing for the mind as well as material prosperity for their followers, and believers in divine science, teaching that investment in the stock of Fremont Grant, Inc., was an oportunity for the practical demonstration of their teachings.

'In furtherance of this scheme they gave lectures and held public meetings in New York, Buffalo, Boston, Atlantic City, San Francisco, Cincinnati and other principal cities in the United States."

Rev. Holmes declared: "I am shocked. This is all wrong. I did not sell the stock. It was my brother. I never induced anyone to purchase the stock. This is a terrible thing to face after my long work for good in New York and throughout the country.

"ALL WILL BE WELL"

"But even now I say this stock is not worthless. I say, those who have purchased it will reap a prowhe nthe property is completely developed. In time all will be well."

Rev. Holmes' wife induced Mrs. Taylor to invest, the attorney-general charges, with the following letter:

"The financial demonstration which would solve so much for you is right at hand. Mr. William Holmes has an investment proposition in which we want you to have a chance. You can phone him for appointment for he may not keep it open for investment by—only during this and next month."

Two Are Dead in Wyoming Storm

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 26 (AP)—With two deaths reported and property damage in the vicinity of Cheyenne estimated at more than $100,000, it was believed here today that the toll of the Wyoming blizzard would mount when communication over the storm area is re-established.

Many motorists were stranded on the highways, and no news of them had been received here since Wednesday. Highway crews were making every effort to reach them.

SHOTS HEARD AT TURNER'S BEFORE FIRE

Hartford, Me., April 26—Pleading for the sake of her two children, who are lodged in jail with her, Mrs. Anna Welch, 26, held since Wednesday in connection with the death of Elihu H. Turner, 76-year-old farmer, today requested that she be released or that some charge be preferred against her.

Couched in terms of demand, the young mother's plea was made to County Atty. William J. Flanagan after she had spent a sleepless night bewailing her position.

The county prosecutor informed Mrs. Welch that it would be impossible to comply with her request until after the autopsy report has been received from the medical examiner.

Dr. W. B. Raymond, county medical examiner, will perform the autopsy on Turner's body in Lewiston this afternoon. Other physicians will attend at the request of Atty. Flanagan.

With evidence that neighbors heard shots fired in the Turner farmhouse before the barn was discovered on fire, investigators today redoubled their efforts to solve the mystery.

Turner's charred and headless body was found in the smoking ruins of the barn, after firemen had extinguished the flames which also destroyed other buildings on the Bear Pond rd., property.

Boston detectives, hired by the State of Maine, today joined Oxford County authorities in the investigation, an early feature of which was to be a thorough search of the Bear pond road district for a gun or a revolver.

Meantime, the police and the county officials were still convinced that a stained axe, also found in the ruins, might have been used in an attack on Turner.

The axe was today placed in the hands of State Chemist A. B. Andrews of Lewiston.

With all possible haste, he was to make tests to determine whether or not the stains upon the steel blade were blood.

4 YOUTHS HELD IN GANG SLAYING

Bristol, R. I., April 26—Four boys were under arrest here today, facing murder charges, as a result of what the police believe was a "gang murder."

One of the prisoners is 15 and the oldest of his companions is 18.

They are being held as the result of the death of Albert Belanger, 45, of Bristol, whom they are said to have severely beaten in a gang attack Tuesday afternoon.

Those under arrest and held without bail are Edward and George Dion, Frank Abate and Antonio Munafo. The Dion brothers and Abate were taken into custody after the street fight with Belanger. Abate furnished $1000 bond on arraignment on an assault charge, but the two brothers were locked up in default of bail.

The Munafo boy, a juvenile, was turned over to his parents. The four were rearrested after Belanger died from a fractured skull, received, police say, when he was thrown to the pavement by the boys, who were seeking to settle a previous argument he had had with Edward Dion.

NONE EXEMPT IN FIGHT ON SMALLPOX

Middleboro, April 26—The fight to check further spread of the smallpox epidemic, which already has a known total of 62 positive cases in this town, continued today with the vaccination of 5500 residents still to be accomplished.

Of the town's 9000 population, 3500 already have been innoculated. Local and State health authorities on the scene are bending every effort toward completion of this work before the dread disease takes further toll.

No man, woman or child living within the town limits is exempt and travelers and visitors must submit to the safeguard.

Strict investigation was being made to determine the source of the epidemic. Attention of the probers was specifically turned upon the possibility that carriers brought the disease from Boston where several cases were on record some time ago.

Today, a corps of med: al experts headed by Dr. Richard McKnight, district health officer of the Massachusetts Board of Health, and Dr. Edward H. Place, physician-in-chief of the Isolation Department of the Boston City Hospital continued the work of giving wholesale vaccinations.

Hundreds of Middleboro men and women stayed away from their work today in order to avoid the risk of infection.

Assisting the health officials were members of the Massachusetts State constabulary, who today were visiting homes throughout the town and carrying the message to every household that none is exempt from the vaccination ordered by the authorities. They were also patrolling the highways leading to and from here to warn all motorists either to detour around Middleboro or take the precautionary treatment.

"BURLESQUE QUEEN" GETS BACK HER TWO BABIES

There is no happier woman in Greater Boston, apparently, than Gertrude Hayes, Jr., the former "burlesque stage queen," who has just recovered her children, Bruce, 3, and Gertrude, 4, found after four sleepless nights and four frantic days. She is suing Joseph H. Laffey, rich Boston and Malden business man, for divorce. (Staff photo.)

ELDRIDGE WILL TELL HIS OWN LOVE STORY

The cross divorce actions of Mrs. Helen L. Eldridge, Newton, and Joseph I. Eldridge, Boston broker, being heard in Middlesex Probate Court, were today continued to next Tuesday, when Eldridge will take the stand.

Following the reading of two depositions, Attorney William Hirsh, counsel for Eldridge, said he had no further evidence at this time. Judge Charles N. Harris announced he would take an exterior view of the premises in Norway st. named in the action. It was here that Mrs. Eldridge and Edmund F. O'Hearn, named by her husband, claimed to have seen Eldridge with Mrs. Edna Smith, named by the wife.

Maurice Rosenberg, an investigator for Eldridge, had testified to making observations from various points in Norway st. He said the lights in Suite 2, alleged to have been occupied by Mrs. Smith, were usually out, and he could see only four or five feet into the apartment from the street.

ONE TOLD ELDRIDGE

He said he never saw anything but the top of a chair and the ceiling. He testified he had worked seventeen days for Eldridge since February.

Atty. Hirsh read a deposition by Samual B. Ridge of Wynnewood, Penn., in which he said he had known Mrs. Eldridge since 1920 or 1921. He told of seeing her at his wife's photo studio in Newton with O'Hearn but could not recall the date. He said he saw them several times and told Eldridge about it.

The deposition of his wife Louis was also read, in which she said she could not tell how many times she had seen Mrs. Eldridge and O'Hearn together.

SUED MRS. ELDRIDGE

One meeting of the couple was disastrous to Mrs. Ridge, said her deposition. She said she attended a theatrical performance at "The Barn," Joy st., Boston, with Mrs. Eldridge, where they met O'Hearn and another man. After the performance Mrs. Eldridge and O'Hearn rode away in his car, and Mrs. Ridge followed in the Eldridge machine, driven by the other man.

At Boylston st. and Norfolk rd., Brookline, the auto collided with a tree or post and Mrs. Ridge sustained a broken jaw and injuries to a foot and ankle. Mrs. Eldridge and O'Hearn returned, she said, and took her to a hospital. She later sued Mrs. Eldridge for damages and recovered $1200 as a result of which they became estranged, according to the deposition.

WILD PARTY IN COTTAGE; FINES FOR TRIO

Details of a "whoopee" party in a North Weymouth cottage, participated in by three Dorchester girls, a Dorchester youth and two Braintree young men, were revealed in Quincy court today.

Kenneth R. Mosher, 20, Faxon st., East Braintree; Harold F. Murray, 23, of Washington st., the same town, and William R. Barker, 19, of Morton st., Dorchester, admitted findings of guilty to charges of breaking and entering and malicious injury to the cottage, property of Samuel Wilde.

Each was fined $15 on the first charge and the second was dismissed in all three cases. Mosher received a suspended sentence of one year on a charge of drunkenness. He appeared in court with his head bandaged as a result of injury from a night stick.

The identities of the girls were withheld by police.

Patrolman Davidson testified he found the sextet engaged in song, demolishing the cottage furniture for fire wood and grouped about a gallon jug which contained a small amount of wine.

Tear Gas in Theater

New Bedford, April 26—A whiskey bottle filled with tear gas and wrapped in a woman's stocking, picked up in a balcony of the Strand Theater, Acushnet ave. and Beetle st., North End, has started a police investigation. The department is seeking persons who, they charge, have tried to disrupt audiences by releasing gas in the theater. George Landers, manager of the house, has complained to North End police that the obnoxious gas was released in his theater for the third time Saturday night.

London, April 26 (INS)—A number of American, British and German refugees have been rescued from Changsha, near the Yangtze river, by the British consul at Shangteh, according to official dispatches received here today. LIGHTNING HITS PRAYING PASTOR

Newburgh, N. Y., April 28 (AP)—Struck by lightning while conducting a prayer meeting, Rev. Ralph N. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church here, was alive today.

Mr. Allen was about to deliver an address at the meeting when the lightning struck and all lights in the room were extinguished except one above the pastor's head.

When members of the congregation recovered from their shock they found Mr. Allen standing rigidly behind the reading desk in a semi-conscious condition.

He escaped with two burns on his forehead.

Wet Driver Barely Moved His Machine

Leominster, April 26—Ten days ago August Thomas of 4 Wood ave., Amesbury, cranked up his automobile on Main st. here and moved his car ten feet when he was arrested by Patrolman Leo Comisky. The patrolman thought Thomas was under the influence of liquor at the time and watched and waited until Thomas moved the machine before arresting him.

Today in the Leominster district court Judge Ralph Robbins fined Thomas $10 per foot for operating under the influence of liquor. Thomas paid. His excuse was that he was only warming up the motor.

London Thieves Get $250,000 in Gems

London, April 26 (INS) — Scotland yard detectives today were making a wide search for a band of international jewel thieves whom they suspect of perpetrating a $250,000 jewel robbery in the Hyde Park hotel.

The jewels belonged to the wife of Anton Jurgens, a millionaire margarine manufacturer.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH FIRE AND DEATH OF MAINE MAN

Mrs. Anna Welch with her five-months-old baby, Doris, and elder child, Gloria, 5 years, in cell of Oxford County Jail, South Paris, Me. Mrs. Welch, a former West Roxbury girl, is held in connection with the mysterious death of Elihu H. Turner, 76-year-old farmer, whose charred and headless body was found in the ruins of his barn destroyed by fire. Mrs. Welch demands release or a specific charge against her, but the county prosecutor asserts nothing can be done until results of an autopsy on Turner's body are reported.

'LOST' DOCTOR IS FOUND

New York, April 26 (AP)—Dist Atty. John McGeehan was informed today that New Jersey police believed they had found the missing Dr. Charles Brancati.

Dr. Brancati, who became wealthy after turning from medicine to stock and real estate speculation, disappeared from his home in the old Gouverneur Morris mansion in the Bronx November 19 last, and his brother expressed the belief that he had been kidnaped and was held for ransom.

A check of records at the federal building today showed that Dr. Brancati was one of 23 suspects arrested in 1923, charged with counterfeiting. The entire group was freed.

Infant Died of 'Inflicted Wounds'

Associate Justice Daniel A. Rollins of the Brookline District Court filed his report of an inquest held April 18 to determine the cause of the death of the son of Mary Verdon, 19 years of age, unmarried, a maid who lived at 70 Fairmount st., Brookline.

The body of the infant was found April 11 in a suitcase in Miss Verdon's room. Judge Rollins finds that the death was caused by incised and punctured wounds in the abdomen and chest wall, and also the neck and a heart wound caused by some cutting instrument.

Police Seize Two in Liquor Raid

A raiding squad, led by Capt. James McDevitt of the Joy st. police station, West End, captured a bottling plant in room 420 at 79 Sudbury st., and after arresting two men in the premises, seized a quantity of liquor.

The men arrested on charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale gave their names and addresses as Isreal Levenson, 25, of Shawmut ave., South End, and Harry Bloom, 29, of Fabin st., South End.

WRECK ON N. H.; TWO HURT

New Haven, Ct., April 26 (AP)—Two engines and 15 cars of a freight train on the Central New England road, from Boston for Maybrook, N. Y., were derailed between Towners and West Patterson, N. Y., at 5:15 a. m. today. Engineer Webber and Trainman Scully were slightly hurt.

New Haven officers said one engine tender dropped to the road below at a bridge. The other engine turned over in the mud.

CRIME BLAMED ON SCIENCE

Worcester, April 26—The present crime wave, "the greatest revolt against law within the memory of living man," owes its existance to the fact that "invention and science have thrown humanity off balance."

Such, at least, was today the expressed opinion of Dist.-Atty. Charles B. Rugg of Worcester County. Rugg told the Worcester Rotary Club that the men and women of this age, thanks to mechanical aids, have unprecedented material power. Their moral backbone, however, isn't adequate to the demand of the times, he said.

Continuing, the district attorney declared:

"This reign of lawlessness has crept over the world almost like an eclipse. What used to be regarded as abnormalities are now looked on as commonplace happenings."

Girls! Shaved Neck Is Banned; Curls Are 'It'

Vienna, April 26 (AP)—Girls to be in fashion must no longer shave the napes of their necks but must allow their hair to grow longer so it can be worn either in curls or in fluffy style in accordance with a "world communique" issued today by the International Hairdressers' Congress now in session here.

The organization, which professes to set international fashion in women's hair dress, says:

"The new fashion which excludes shaving the neck, offers all the advantages of short hair and permits at the same time, thanks to the permanent wave, that hair can be worn in curls. The small head shall remain preeminent but hair, in harmony with the present development of the entire feminine toilette, shall be worn more brushy. This style is more individualistic and dresses better."

Baldwin Has His Troubles in Talkie

London, April 26 (AP) — Made under great difficulty, a talkie of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is to be used in the campaign." He lost his place in the manuscript he was reading in the garden at 10 Downing st. and the film had to be started all over again. A pigeon's cooing necessitated some shooing and a second start.

Then the wind blew the manuscript off a table and the prime minister chased it over the lawn. The next time the crank moved, all went well.

NORRIS JOINS MELLON'S FOES

Washington, April 26 (AP)—A division of opinion has developed in the Senate Judiciary Committee on the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office in the face of an old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in trade or commerce, and a special session of the committee has been called for tomorrow for a vote on the question.

Chairman Norris of the committee has joined those contending that Mr. Mellon is illegally holding office. He is ready to submit a report to his effect to the committee tomorrow.

Mr. Mellon informtd the committee he was a stockholder in several business concerns, but had resigned all executive positions in the business world. The question at issue is whether a stockholder constitutes one interested in trade or commerce within the meaning of the old law.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, contends if a stockholder cannot serve as Secretary of the Treasury it will be hard to find a man for that office.

The Somerville Board of Aldermen on recommendation of Mayor Connell has appropriated $10,000 for a memorial to the men of Somerville, who fought in the Spanish-American war. A public hearing was recently held before the aldermen, at which veterans of the Spanish war and representatives of other veteran organizations appeared in favor of the memorial.

Marion Talley Led by Mystic Forces

New York, April 26 (AP)—Marion Talley's elder sister Florence insists that the young opera singer is retiring in obedience to mysterious psychic forces which have guided her through her career.

When Marion announced her decision to quit the operatic and concert stage two weeks ago she said something about "destiny," but also gave the more prosaic reason that she wanted to live on a farm.

Sister Florence, a sedate, bobbed-haired blonde, who has been Marion's secretary, explained her theory which is reminiscent of the classic Trilby, thus:

"You see Marion is not conscious of the mysterious powers that guide her actions. But mother and I have known it all the time. So that when she suddenly told us she had decided to quit opera we weren't a bit surprised."

Florence admitted her sister felt that hard work had something to do with her success, but asked how to account for the fact that the former prima donna has been able to master several languages and smokers.

speak them with hardly a trace of accent.

The sister appeared amazed at the suggestion Marion might be contemplating matrimony with a railroad magnate, as has been rumored.

"Marion be married! Marion has no such ideas at present. I guess it will come as suddenly as her recent decision—a psychic whisper."

An anonymous admirer in Waterbury, Ct., has donated four chicks "to start a chicken farm."

Her sister said:

"If you only saw how Marion and I delight in caring for these chicks, you wouldn't doubt Marion's decision for a moment."

In 1891 Michael contracted a morganatic marriage with Countess Torby and they lived together until her death in 1927. Their two daughters married into the British nobility, one being Lady Zia Wenher, wife of Maj. Sir Harold Wenher, and the other Countess Milford Haven, whose husband is a cousin of King George. They also had a son, Count Michael Torby.

Now the Locksmiths Can Laugh at Love in Show at Plymout'

By Nicholas Young

TO a man trained in the arts of vaudeville, the value of time is an impressive subject for consideration. Therefore, when Edwin Burke, skilled sketch-monger of the two-a-day, dashed off "This Thing Called Love" he jumped right at you in his first page manuscript. Almost before his characters appear on the stage, they are properly and vociferously introduced: there are no tedious waits while the author builds upon his motif and distributes his people. In no time at all you meet all the rattling benedicts who keep the story running at top speed; the cards are on the able face up.

If Mr. Burke aims to set forth in theatrical caricature the average city home where things run at sixes and sevens, he has gained his objective: for here, at the Plymouth, you discover that connubial bliss is not much more than a pretty phrase from the copy books. He has, however, written as smart a comedy as the theater of the present season may hope to yield. A wrangling group of men and women shake down their personal troubles. It is the thing called love, to quote the author's title, that wrecks the joy of living. Yet it would be hard to accept Mr. Burke's three lively acts as an honest portrait of the average home.

Nick Young

Still, the comedy runs naturally; there is more than a grain of truth in its vigorous gospels. Where love abounds, jealousy finds fertile soil for constant harrowing, and in "This Thing Called Love" the experts are on the job restlessly and persistently. A cast of exceptional quality interprets Mr. Burke's play. For that he should be grateful, for in less competent hands the reports of the proceedings could easily take a turn for the worse. There is something authoritatively regal in the poise and manner of Violet Heming. She seldom fails in any kind of a role. As the sophisticated, level-headed woman of affairs in "This Thing Called Love," she is completely worthy of the best superlative on your list of kind words for good players.

Juliette Day, less level-headed and burning with untamed jealousy, gives a smashing performance. We never have seen a more thoroughly angry woman. Minor Watson completes the trio of toiling artists that make "This Thing Called Love" not only surprisingly entertaining, but as laughable as anything you will see for some time to come.

DOLORES COSTELLO

MOTHER HELPED STAR IN START

Dolores Costello, starring in "The Glad Rag Doll," the Vitaphone all-talking picture at the Washington St. Olympia and Fenway Theaters for the week beginning tomorrow, owes her start on the screen to her mother, as well as her beauty, for Mrs. Costello was the original Gibson Girl.

Mrs. Costello was Mae Altshuh. Maurice Costello was a young leading man on the stage when he met the lovely Mae. They were married, and it was the counsel of Costello's lovely young wife that started him in motion pictures.

Just as she counseled her husband, so did Mrs. Gibson train and guide her daughter, helping her climb from comparative obscurity to a prominent place on the screen. Mrs. Gibson has always proved herself a real as well as "stage" mother to her daughters, always ready with help and advice.

BLAME DE KING FOR KILLING OF WIFE

Geneva, Ill., April 26 (AP)—The Grand Jury has decided not to indict Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith for the slaying during a dry raid of Mrs. Lillian DeKing. The jury was reported to have been deadlocked for some hours over a proposal to indict the dead woman's husband, Joseph, on a liquor charge.

Ten witnesses were understood to have told of having bought liquor from DeKing at his home, and it was on this testimony that some of the jurors favored an indictment. The majority held that whether DeKing sold liquor was beside the question, the investigation being to determine how his wife was killed.

It was revealed that DeKing was asked by a juror if he did not consider himself to blame for his wife's death. Had he not been standing with his revolvers in plain sight when the raiders demanded to search his home, he would not have been struck down from behind and his wife shot, he was advised.

One true bill charged perjury against E. B. Fairchild, whose affidavit of buying liquor led to the raid. Fairchild told a coroner's jury he did not actually buy the liquor himself, as the affidavit asserted.

Reach Karachi in Flight to India

Simla, India, April 26 (AP)—The English Royal Airforce plane seeking to break long distance flight records in a flight from England to Calcutta, passed over Karachi, India at 10:30 a. m., Greenwich mean time.

The aviators are A. G. Jones Williams and N. H. Jenkins, who left England with Calcutta as their objective and had been in the air 41 hours and 42 minutes when sighted over Gask, Persia, at 1:20 a. m., Greenwich mean time.

Fair Weather and Colder

The excessive humidity borne in upon the heels of the departing storm by ennervating southwest winds, which jumped the mercury here to 70 above well before noon, is due to vanish by nightfall with a consequent slump in temperature.

Cooler weather today is slowly sweeping over the entire country east of the Rockies, developing disturbances are noticeably absent, and the unofficial forecast indicates fair skies for the current week-end.

The southwest gale and accompanying rain, predicted last night for New England, hit its hardest blow on Cape Cod, where rainfalls in excess of an inch were reported as compared with only one-third of an inch in Boston.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Saturday; cooler tonight; fresh westerly winds, diminishing.

U. S. CONSENTS TO UNLIMITED ARMY RESERVE

Geneva, April 26 (AP)—Two important announcements were made at today's session of the preparatory disarmament commission, one being that the United States was willing to withdraw its reservation to the exclusion of trained reserves from any limitation of armies.

The other was a Spanish proposal for creation of an international force of peace aviators, to be stationed at Geneva and placed at the disposition of the League of Nations as suggested by Clifford B. Harmon of New York.

The American position on trained reserves had been that they should be subjected to limitation just as standing armies should be. Hugh S. Gibson, American delegate, made it clear the United States still believed this, but was willing to withdraw its reservation as a gesture of conciliation.

France and Japan, most affected, welcomed Mr. Gibson's announcement warmly to hasten accord on a reduction in armaments.

The United States joined Germany in contending that the limitation of military airplanes should not be based on the number of civil airplanes possessed by neighboring countries.

Washington, April 26 (AP)—Announcement that the United States would withdraw its reservations on the question of trained reserves is part of the policy of President Hoover to speed disarmament.

GIBRALTAR IS NEXT STOP OF PILGRIMS

By ELIAS McQUAID
(Special Radio Dispatch)
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent.

On Board the S. S. Presidents Wilson, April 26—After bucking an east wind like that at home for 24 hours the New England Pilgrims were elated today to be told that the ship will be within a few hours of Gibraltar tonight.

The sky is overcast and there has been some rain, interfering with deck sports. The ship's daily paper carries most all of the news of Europe, but the Pilgrims miss the baseball scores from home.

The members of the party are eagerly looking forward to their visit to the great fortress that guards the straits, and its arrival is expected early in the morning. they expect to have most of the day for sight-seeing.

The pilgrim ship has just passed through rather choppy seas. But now that everybody has become a veteran sailor by practically a week at sea, no one was affected to any extent. Cardinal O'Connell today continued his customary exercise along the promenade deck, having frequent rounds of conversation with the nearly 250 members of the party.

The stay at the South Atlantic island though only of 10 hours' duration was sufficiently long to provide many interesting ventures furnishing topics for discussion.

Following the usual masses in the chapel, the committee on deck games headed by Edward A. McLoughlin took up the various contests and these engaged more or less attention through the morning and afternoon.

The visit to St. Michaels Island has resulted in stirring interest in Gibraltar. Many interesting facts relative to this British stronghold at the mouth of the Mediterranean have been anticipated with keenest interest.

Dapper Don Smiles at Three-Year Term

Paterson, N. J., April 26 (AP)—"Dapper Don" Collins, smiled today when Judge Harley imposed a maximum sentence of three years imprisonment and a fine of $1000 upon him. Four Persons Hurt When Auto Skids

Four persons were injured, one seriously, last night, when an automobile skidded on the wet street car rails at Stanford and Green sts., West End, plunging into a group of boys playing on the sidewalk and smashing through a large plate glass window in the Temple Drug Co. at 73 Green st.

Frank Zappala, 11, of 48½ Green st., is at Haymarket Relief Hospital, suffering from multiple cuts and an injury to his right groin. Raymond Bardino, 13, of 62 Green st. and Frank Campanella, 13, of 55 Green st., were treated at the office of Dr. A. Haskins, 80 Green st., for minor injuries to the arms and legs. William A. Francis, 35 of 24 Emerald st., South End, a special officer at the Howard Theater, claimed injuries to his leg, but refused police assistance.

JAIL SAILORS IN HOLDUP

James Meisner, 19, and Edward H. Vincent, 20, sailors attached to the Chelsea Naval Hospital, were sentenced to indefinite terms in Concord Reformatory today, after being found guilty of highway robbery in Dedham Superior Criminal Court.

Meisner's home is in Easthampton and that of Vincent in Stamford, Ct. A third sailor, Charles Moore of Boston, was found not guilty and discharged.

On the night of April 8 the three sailors hired the taxicab of Arthur Shute of 123 Spring st., Cambridge, and ordered him to drive them to Quincy. Near that city they held Shute up at the point of a gun, robbed him of $10 and drove away in his taxi.

WITH SHOE KNIFE

LINCOLN HEAD CARVED BY COBBLER

Northampton has a cobbler who is a philosopher in the person of James Lucey, friend of ex-President Coolidge, but Everett has a cobbler who is a wood-carver, it was learned today.

He is Frank Rosato of 56 Malden st., that city, whose latest effort, a small head of Lincoln, has attracted favorable comment from everyone who has seen it.

With no special training, and with no tools other than a shoe knife, Rosato has carved a speaking likeness of the martyred President, which has been displayed in the schools of Everett.

Although Rosato's business is repairing and selling shoes, he has an excellent education, speaking English, French and German in addition to his native dialects. At the time of Lindbergh's flight he wrote and had published a verse commemorating it, in which he displayed his knowledge of the classics.

Freshmen Put One Over on Sophomores

Worcester, April 26—Members of the sophomore class at Worcester Tech awoke Thursday morning and saw floating from the top of the 60-foot flag-staff in Alumni field a banner bearing the numerals of the freshman class, while their own numerals were flapping from a black flag hung at half mast from the same pole.

The earliest risers were foiled in their attempts to reverse the positions of the two flags because the freshmen who had done the job during the night expected that such an attempt would be made and they gave the flag staff a thick

QUEST WINNER ANNOUNCED SOON

Who is she?
Is she a blonde or a brunette?
Are her eyes blue or brown?
Be patient and you shall know.

To the hundreds of young ladies who were nominated in the "Typical American Girl" Quest, which was conducted by Smart Set Magazine and sponsored by the Hearst and other newspapers throughout the United States, the Boston Evening American, New England regional sponsoring newspaper, will shortly announce the name of the winner.

The hundreds of relatives, boy friends, girl chums, sweethearts, and others who nominated their choice in this most successful contest, will soon know who this New England girl is.

Your candidate still has a chance to win the $5000 national award and a trip to London, Berlin and Paris, with all expenses paid by the Smart Set Magazine.

The local committee of judges has completed its work. The committee consisted of the following:

Miss Alice H. Grady, deputy commissioner of the savings bank life insurance, State of Massachusetts, and an attorney of note. She is also well known in women's club circles and in national as well as State affairs.

Frederick E. Wallace of the Fenway Studies, a member of the Guild of Boston Artists, instructor in Boston University Art School, and a portrait painter of national fame.

Dr. John A. Ceconi, director of the department of school hygiene of Boston public schools, president of the American Association of the School of Physicians and former director of the bureau of communicable diseases of the Boston health department. He is famous for his introduction in Boston by means of the Schick test, and preventative inoculation for diphtheria, which has in the past five years saved thousands of children both of pre-school age and early adult life.

The judges have labored earnestly and conscientiously in an effort to present to the readers of the Boston Evening American a type of girl who answers the requirement set forth in the "Typical American Girl" Quest by Smart Set Magazine.

So the Quest Editor of this newspaper asks your indulgence of a few days, when the official announcement will be made of the winner.

JUDGES IN TYPICAL GIRL QUEST

Frederick E. Wallace — Miss Alice Grady — Dr. John A. Ceconi

NONE TO EASY TASK

The trio which passed judgment in the Boston Evening American's typical girl quest had much detail to consider before they reached a verdict. Mr. Wallace is a portrait painter, Mrs. Brady is deputy commissioner of savings bank life insurance in this State, and Dr. Ceconi is director of hygiene in the Boston public schools. (Staff photo.)

Storrow Case Settled by Payment of Costs

The difficulties between Mrs. James J. Storrow of Boston and the Quincy court, which were featured by the issuance of a warrant for her arrest for default, were settled today when her counsel pleaded nolo to a charge of speeding and the case was filed.

Judge Avery, after ordering Mrs. Storrow to pay $5 as costs of court, expressed his regrets to her counsel over the publicity which her case received.

"Two Gun" Baker, Quincy motorcycle officer who made the arrest, was ill at home, his wife having sent a note to the police station to the effect that he was suffering from "poor vitality."

Sentenced for Manslaughter

Charles R. Siebert, of South Boston, who opened his celebration of New Year's Day by firing his revolver out the window with the result that the bullet passed through the window of Joseph Kudrevick striking and causing the latter's death, pleaded guilty in the Superior Court to a charge of manslaughter.

Judge Philip J. O'Connell sent Siebert to the Charles st. jail for six months.

DRUNKENNESS WORSE NOW THAN EVER

Herewith is published today in the Hearst papers the third installment of Sheldon's amazing discussion of prohibition, an educational document contributed to the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest

By H. G. SHELDON
Former State Director of Prohibition Enforcement for Rhode Island.

Originally it was declared that prohibition would reduce to a minimum, the curse of the old saloon, drunkenness. As a matter of fact, backed up by police statistics, drunkenness without real liquor, under prohibition, has reached actually a greater stage than under the old barroom, and is of a worse kind.

The poisonous liquor "puts a man out for keeps." Police departments, with their inadequate forces and obliged to give so much of their resources to the traffic problem, find little time to go after liquor, except what appears on the surface.

Federal courts, with their tremendous resources and their meagre, inefficient personnel, return annually less than 100,000 reported violations.

It is announced arbitrarily from Washington that the court is expected to discriminate in the magnitude of the violations, but there is no preventing a judge handing out the maximum penalty for a minimum violation. And a fanatical dry judge will do it when he gets the chance.

500 Gather for Gypsy Couple's Wedding

Louisville, Ky., April 26 (AP)—Gypsy tribes from Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and other points, were moving toward Louisville today to attend one of the most elaborate wedding ceremonies ever staged by gypsies in this country.

It is expected that between 400 and 600 will be in the city by tomorrow, when Frank John, 17-year-old son of Chief Gregory John of Philadelphia, and Rosie Stanley, 16, daughter of William Stanley of Louisville, will be wed. Both are members of the John tribe.

Pigs, turkeys and chickens were being roasted all over town for the feasts, an orchestra from Cincinnati is engaged to play continuously for the first 24 hours of celebration.

The wedding will take place in a three-acre field near the Ohio river, where Chief John and about 30 tribesmen and their families have pitched tents.

Medbury Says:

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

HISTORY tells us of a polite Indian who, before he scalped a man, always asked, "Shall I take much off the top, sir?"

Excuse It, Please

A Scotchman was found locked in a telephone booth the other day, dead. He had a nickel in his pocket but he was probably too tight to phone for the police.

The Unfair Sex

The woman who pretends to believe her husband when she knows he's lying.

Auto-Suggestion

America may be a wonderful country, but there aren't enough parking spaces.

Justifiable Homicide

When a husband snores so loud his wife can't hear herself talk.

You're Right

The man who kicks about his restaurant check has dined and whined.

Take It or Leave It

Up-to-date business schools are now giving courses in golf.

Vital Statistics

Death doesn't necessarily end everything, but it helps a lot.

Null and Void

CROSS IS STILL PROMINENT IN FILM WORLD

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

DETROIT, April 26—It is no long since I have had a line from Harry Cohn of Columbia fame that I had begun to think that maybe Harry was merging with somebody or that somebody was amalgamating with Columbia. No such thing.

Harry is doing business at the old stand, and is still foremost in the ranks of independent producers, and is just about to break out with another special, which will include the co-operation of the United States Marine Corps in San Diego.

With "Submarine" bringing fame and fortune to Columbia, "Flight," the new special, will be patterned along the same lines. Moreover, the same trio who emoted in "Submarine" will do the same service in "Flight"—Dorothy Revier, Ralph Graves and Jack Holt.

MARY PICKFORD is on her way East. She and Douglas Fairbanks will take an active part in the conclave set for the first week of May in Manhattan, between United Artists and Warners. Furthermore, Mary will visit some of the theaters playing "Coquette." What a way to boost her first talkie, now playing in all the large key cities including Detroit, New York, Chicago, Kansas City and others. Personal appearance do pay. Lupe Velez proved that by pulling over two pictures that would ordinarily have been only average in their box office returns.

I SHALL EXPECT Carl Van Vechten to have a change of heart as soon as he visits Hollywood again. He tells me that it will be soon and that he may write a second book. He does not admit that "Spider Boy" is anything more than a good-natured caricature of Picture Land. In fact, I have an idea he thinks those of us who resented his novel were extremely narrow-minded. Fannie Hurst's second article is so much more complimentary than her previous articles of Hollywood that Carl will stand alone in his bitterness. One by one the important authors are going to Hollywood, to say nothing of the important actors and composers.

LUPE VELEZ can come pretty near dictating what she wants and what she doesn't want to United Artists. Her jaunt across the country proved that 50,000 movie patrons cannot be wrong and they all voted for Lupe. She didn't choose to play the role of Chili in "Lummox" with Winifred Westover as the lead and she said so in no uncertain language. I suspect she was aided and abetted in her Bolshevist attitude by Mary Conner, who smiles only when Lupe speaks.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random by an observer: Alma Rubens' performance in "She Goes to War," being applauded by an enthusiastic audience at a preview; Genevieve Mitchell, Follies girl, dining at the Roosevelt Hotel with two prominent film men; Estelle Taylor dining at the same place; Marion Nixon, a vision in purple, lunching at the Montmartre; Harold Lloyd among those present at a preview at the Chinese Theater; Mr. and Mrs. William McAdoo applauding a performance of "The Second Man" the visiting New York Theatre Guild's play; Alice Joyce, Ray Griffith, and Joseph Schildkraut at the same theater; Marion Davies admiring Owen the Gateman's new spring suit; Owen admitting that Miss Davies has good taste: also that she is one of his favorite actresses.

Providence Man Is Honored in Germany

Karlsruhe, Ger., April 26—The title of honorary fellow has been conferred upon John R. Freeman of Providence, R. I., senior president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers by the Polytechnic Institute. The honor was given the Providence man in recognition of his pioneer activity as a many sided engineer in prominent scientific research and services for the International promotion of hydraulic systems.

Zeppelin Finishes Long Trip South

Friedrichshafen, Germany, April 26—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin landed at its home port at 10:24 Thursday night, after a flight of 57 hours over southeastern Europe, the Mediterranean and northern Africa.

It was estimated that it had travelled about 3400 miles since it left here early Tuesday afternoon. It carried 20 paying passengers and a quantity of mail, dropped at cities along its route.

Find Diamond Agent Injured in Street

Providence, April 26—Police today were seeking to pierce the mystery surrounding the injuries sustained by Alex Downes, 60-year-old Pawtuxet valley sportsman, and agent for a local diamond house, who was found unconscious on a street in Riverpoint, near his home.

He was found in a driving rain lying on the pavement, while nearby was a handbag containing valuable diamonds and a large sum of money

FLAG EXERCISES IN WESTFIELD TONIGHT

Relatives and friends of a score or more of girl scouts, members of Troop 1, Westfield, will gather tonight in the Lang Audience Room to take part in the public exercises in connection with the awarding of the "Old Glory" medal and "Honorable Mention" to the winners in their local unit of the Flag Contest, now being conducted by the United States Flag Association.

The Girl Scouts of Westfield, was one of the first units organized in the present Flag Contest. The unit is headed by Eleanor G. Pringle, captain of the local troop.

Four important sections of paragraph 27, under the head of "Details of Contest," should be read by the heads of contest units. They are as follows:

(l) NOTIFYING CONTESTANTS SELECTED TO RECITE ESSAYS. Notify immediately the Contestants who are selected to recite their essays, informing them of the time and place of recitation. (Par. 17-b and Par. 18.)

(m) INSTRUCTION OF CONTESTANTS WHO ARE TO RECITE THEIR ESSAYS. Take special care to see that every Contestant who is selected to recite his or her essay is thoroughly instructed in, and fully understands, all the rules governing the recitation of essays, so far as they directly affect the Contestants. Pars. 16 and 20.)

(p) REPORT OF AWARDS TO LOCAL FLAG CHAMPIONS. Prepare without delay the Report of Awards to Local Flag Champions (Form No. 1), which is to be forwarded to the Regional sponsor newspaper with the Contest papers of the local Champions. (Pars. 24 and 25.)

(q) FORWARDING PAPERS OF CHAMPIONS. Within 48 hours after the announcement of the awards (Par. 18) mail to the Regional sponsoring newspaper, the papers of the winners, accompanied by the Report of Awards and to Local Flag Champions. In no case will the Regional sponsoring newspaper accept any Contest papers bearing a postmark later than May 11. (Par. 25.)

Worshippers Fill Boston Synagogues

Synagogues and temples of Boston were again crowded with worshippers last night observing the second night of the eight-day Passover holiday. From several score pulpits was recounted the story of the exodus of the Jews from Egypt and lessons were drawn from it for life today. The "festival of freedom," as the Passover is often termed, closed its major ceremonies with the second "seder supper" last night. This is the family feast observed in thousands of Boston Jewish homes in which are symbolized the events that took place at the time of the great Hebrew exodus in the reign of the Pharaohs.

REPRODUCE PARIS CAFE ON RADIO

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

THE Bi-Lingual group known as Manon, Peaches, Jacques and Bill, will pay a visit to the Rat Mort in their weekly excursion into the bright lights of Paris tonight, through WEEI and Company at 9 o'clock, rather an early hour to look for excitement on Montmartre.

SINNERS AND SAINTS

THE RAT MORT, or to English it, the Dead Rat, is an old-timer it, the Dead Rat, is an old-timer that was flourishing long before Texas Guinan dreamed of becoming a Lone Star in the Little Girl—Big Hand business. It is located in the Clichy district, in comfortable proximity to the Moulin Rouge, the Abbaye and the Basilica of the Sacre Coeur. If the hilltop of romantic fame leads you to sin, it also leads you still higehr, to repentance. Climbing the hill of Montmartre is like a pilgrim's progress, through overlapping strata of human misconduct and misery, affluence and heroism, respectability and sanctity. They are all there, saints and sinners, depraved and respectable, weaving in and out, up and down the crooked streets and steep lanes, each on his own affairs and oblivious to the antithises with which he rubs elbows.

SHOW PLACES AND OTHERS

MONTMARTRE has an argot of its own, puzzling even to the round-the-town Parisian. Its mysteries of dialect are known to gutter rats and prime donne; to statesmen and cocottes whose domain is on the side of the Butte. The Rat Mort and the Abbaye are show spots, but they are not Montmartre. The real Montmartre is not for strangers. Its denizens are aloof, exclusive. They are greedy of their valor and their vices. Their congregating places would astonish the outsider.

JOY for the hostess
JOY for the guests
in the new FRO-JOY 2-FLAVOR PINT PACKAGE
by ALICE BRADLEY

"WHAT on earth can I serve that's unusual?"

Smart modern hostesses know the answer! The novelty of the Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package can not grow old, because every week the flavors change. Always it is ice cream in its most novel and appealing form, with an out-of-the-ordinary combination of flavors.

No matter what you pay, you can not buy ice cream purer or more wholesome than Fro-joy. Its smooth, creamy goodness brings joy to any gathering—as a daily dessert just as much as at a party.

Most joyous of all is the satisfying knowledge that Fro-joy Ice Cream is the food richest in "Youth Units"—as nourishing as it is delicious. "Youth Units" are vital elements, such as phosphorus, calcium (lime), and soluble iron, which guard health—energy—YOUTH itself. General Ice Cream Corporation.

THIS WEEK
THE NEW FRO-JOY 2-FLAVOR PINT PACKAGE CONTAINS TOASTED ALMOND & CHERRY ICE CREAM

"Almonds are good; toasted they are better. They give a unique flavor to ice cream and this again combines nicely with the color and flavor of a cherry cream."
—ALICE BRADLEY

And Fro-joy is always available in pint packages in vanilla or chocolate or in both combined, and in Neapolitan which has vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. A constant favorite is vanilla, served with berries, hot or cold chocolate sauce, sliced fruits.

"Youth Units"—What Marvelous Good Fortune—

"Youth Units" are food elements that, when eaten regularly, have the amazing power to rebuild and rejuvenate living cells. Only foods which contain the essential vitamins and the vital mineral salts—soluble iron, calcium and phosphorus — are capable of keeping cells young. Many people age prematurely, because their diets do not include a sufficient amount of these cell-rejuvenating "Youth Units."

The richest of all foods in "Youth Units" is milk—except for pure ice cream, such as Fro-joy. And the new Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package contains three times as many "Youth Units" as a pint of milk!

"Fro-joy" ICE CREAM

CHOCK-FULL OF "YOUTH UNITS"

It's the Schlitz flavor that makes the difference!

TASTE IT . . . try it . . . that's the only way you can ever learn of the wonderful flavor of Schlitz!

From the farmer's barley field to the consumer, Schlitz Malt Syrup is guarded in quality. Finer . . . more perfect . . . here's the malt you've been waiting for! And the flavor is sealed in the can for keeps! You can buy Schlitz at all good dealers.

CIRCUS THRILLS INDOORS AS WELL AS OUT

It's circus time again—and this year nobody needs to care whether sunshine or rain greets the "Greatest Show on Earth."

Sheltered under the Boston Garden's ample roof, the huge Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey spectacle was off to a weather-proof start today.

The opening performances demonstrated that circus atmosphere, after all, doesn't depend on billowing canvas. The big show lost none of its glamor by reason of its indoor setting. To the contrary, against the futuristic background of the vast steel and cement North Station auditorium, the tinsel and spangles of circus costumes stod out to glittering advantage.

So far as visibility was concerned, the multiple activities of the three rings and two platforms benefited enormously by the Garden's lighting and seating arrangements. From every seat in the house, the whole kaleidoscope array of ever-changing feats was in plain sight.

SEATS COMFORTABLE

And speaking of seats—

That's one more Boston Garden talking point. This circus can be enjoyed without wear and tear on the rear of the Sunday suit's trousers. Pillows from home aren't obligatory for comfort, either, and mother doesn't have to buy two tickets for herself, even if she has been dieting lately. The Garden chairs are full size and stable and easy on the disposition.

Nothing of circus-lot color and blare was missing as the big show made its indoor bow. The managerie flanking the main entrance had its old-time uproar and its familiar smells. The growling of lions and the trumpeting of elephants echoed through corridors as they must have echoed, centuries ago, through the passages of the Roman Coliseum. The pop-corn peanut and lemonade barkers brought wandering imaginations back to practical modernity.

RUNS OFF SMOOTHLY

In the huge arena itself, covered as it was with a foot of earth and a super-surface of sawdust, the program features were run off as deftly and spectacularly as of yore under canvas.

This year's circus has much more than the usual assortment of novel thrills. Aerial, equestrian and balancing acts include the pick of the world's big time numbers. The 1929 show too, has an unprecedentedly attractive feminine personnel, bedecked appropriately in costumes that show no signs of the rough usage of road travel and one-night stands.

For the first time on record, the Wild West display is free and in corporated as a part of the regular performance. There is no "special concert." The side show too, requires no second ticket.

Fears Her Husband

Chicago, April 26—Fear that her husband, a bus killer would carry out his threat to "kill my throat" as he killed his hogs, caused Mrs. Henry J. Schreiber to ask a divorce in court here.

The show, directed by George "Decker" Thornton, will combine old-fashioned minstrel acts with musical comedy skits and dances, a pony ballet, sunshine girls, doll dance, Spanish dance, Irish colleens and military tap dances.

Catherine Ford Mae McCarthy

Prominent in the cast are: Catherine Ford, Marion McGee, Margaret Lyons, Helen Butler, Anna Reardon, Abbie Flanagan, Alice Ford, Louise Glavin, Mary Wall, Ethel Currier, Mildred Glynn, Dorothy Butler, Cynthia Butler, Katherine Quigley, Margaret Flanagan, Grace Doherty, Katherine McGilvary, Katherine Shea, Lillian Gorman, Katherine Glavin, Kathryn Healey, Betty Sullivan, Margaret Fitzgerald, Florence and Alice Harvey, Virginia Wall, Florence Lombard, Francis J. Hickey, James Kelley, Herbert Stowe, Herbert Ross, John Burns, Al Halpin and Edward Nugent.

Worcester Girl Out of Coma for Short Time

Worcester, April 26—Breaking the long coma, in which she has lain since the afternoon of April 13, Lorraine Cournayr, 3, of 28 Lowelle st., came to, smiled, asked for a glass of water, and after drinking relapsed into unconsciousness early today.

At 8.30 this morning the child had been in a coma, with the exception of the one brief interval, for 186 hours.

Sinclair Will Have to Eat Jail Food

Washington, April 26—Harry F. Sinclair will eat jail food during his 90-day sentence for contempt of the Senate. When informed of reports that the oil magnate had arranged to have hotel food brought to the jail, Supt. Barnard said jail rules prevented any cooked food being brought in.

New England Fair May Die at the Age of 109

Worcester, April 26 (AP)—Whether Worcester Agricultural Society, which conducts the New England Fair here, a 109-year-old institution, is to be put into the discard is to be determined at a mass meeting called for May 2.

In order to insure the continuance of the organization assurance must be given of subscriptions for a fund of $30,000 a year for three years to meet expenses for improvements, interest on mortgage and executive outlay.

White House Dog Dies

Washington, April 26 (INS)—Gloom was cast over the White House this morning. "Pat," an Irish wolfhound, died from distemper after surgeons tried to save him.

MILLIONAIRES NAMED IN DIVORCE

San Francisco, April 25 (AP)—A prosaic divorce dispute between Herman Heibush, San Francisco and Los Angeles capitalist, and Gwyneth Heibush became an affair of importance to many today when a series of affidavits filed in the case involved an array of California million-dollar motion picture stars and directors, and their wives and other women.

Both Heibush and his wife are seeking a divorce decree, a series of affidavits in favor of Heibush, citing improprieties on the part of his wife, were followed by a counter-offensive on the part of Mrs. Heibush, who charged the affidavits were "bought for a big price" by her husband.

SARGENT BRADLEE TAKES BRIDE IN NEW YORK TODAY

Many Bostonians Attend Wedding in the Hotel Ambassador, New York, Today

NOT OFTEN IS THE GROOM the central figure of interest a wedding news but today Sargent Bradlee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee of 211 Beacon st., is followed to the altar by the good wishes of an exceptionally large circle of Boston and Newport friends. In the Italian Garden of the Hotel Ambassador, New York, Miss Louise Trippe, daughter of Mrs Charles White Trippe of New York, becomes his bride at 4 o'clock this afternoon. A religious ceremony will be witnessed only by the immediate families and a few intimate friends. Fr. Quinlan of St. Vincent Ferrer's Church will officiate.

MISS TRIPPE WILL BE ATTENDED by Mrs. Anson A. Bigelow of Port Washington, L. I., as matron of honor. Her other attendants will be her cousin, Miss Eleanor Trippe of Adamsville, Eastern Shore, Md., Miss Lelia Baldwin, Miss Sylvia R. Hillhouse, Mrs. Juan T. Trippe, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert Shaw, Jr. and Mrs. T. Walter D. Duke of New York.

MALCOLM BRADLEE, brother of the groom, will act as best man. The ushers will be Frederick J. Bradlee, another brother; Roger Converse, Lincoln Davis and Lawrence Terry of Boston; Jackson V. R. Bright of Waltham, Charles Cottrell of Westerly, R. I.; Langhorne Gibson and W. Dering Howe of New York.

ELEONORA SEARS, INVETERATE globe-trotter and Boson's most famous woman pedestrian, is keeping up her stride on the decks of the Berengaria on the high seas today, Paris-bound. Sailing with her is her sister, Mrs. Fiske Warren of Mt. Vernon pl. These sisters are to spend the summer abroad, moving about from one resort to another as fancy dictates.

AFFIXING THEIR NAMES TO the first patroness list for the annual Harvard Dramatic Club show, "Close-Up," opening May 8 in Brattle Hall, are Mrs. A. Lawrence Lowell, Mrs. Godfrey Cabot, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. Arthur W. Moore, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs S. H. Walcott, Mrs Charles Almy, Mrs. C. Peabody Gardiner, Mrs. F. W. Taussig, Mrs Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. David Cheever and several more with whom this courtesy is almost an institution.

SOCIETY FOLK LOVE TO lend their names to the Liberal Club of Harvard also, and the long list of notables sponsoring the Randall Thompson concert at the Hotel Commander on May 8, again points to a crowded auditorium. Noted among the names were those of Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene, Mrs. Norwood P. Hallowell, Mrs. Robert De Courcey Ward, Mrs. Richard C. Wadsworth, Mrs. J. G Thorp, Mrs. Donald H McLaughlin, Mrs. John F. Moors, Miss Margaret Ruthven Lane, Mrs. Henry L. Mason, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Mrs Thomas W. Sorette, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Miss Eugenia Frothingham, Mrs. Oakes Ames and Miss Ellen T. Pendleton. Special interest attaches to this concert because Mr. Thompson has just been awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship for study abroad next year.

AS THE SAYING GOES, "RUMOR is not news," but it is interesting just the same when it

Back From Piano Study in Europe

Josephine Hamblin Day returns today from Europe on the S. S. America, where she has completed four years of pianoforte study. Mrs. Day studied in London three years under the well known Tobias Matthay of the Matthay School, and distinguished herself as one of his outstanding pupils, receiving many high honors. For the past year Mrs Day has been studying under the famous Mademoiselle Boulanger of Paris, again excelling at the piano.

Mrs Day is a bride of last June when she returned to America to wed Dr. Kenneth K. Day of Vaban.

MRS. SARGENT BRADLEE
The former Miss Louise Trippe of New York was married to Boston society man today.

concerns the future plans of Francesca Braggiotti. That's why hints coming from the Braggiotti-Denshawn dancing school indicating possible commuting between New York and Boston, today revived hopes in the hearts of her hundreds of admirers. It is possible, according to current gossip at crowded rehearsals there, that Miss Braggiotti may not be entirely lost to Boston after her marriage to John D. Lodge. But "Cesca" herself will neither affirm nor deny, and so the curious continue to ask, interpret, and wait for definite word.

LITTLE FOLKS FROM "UPTOWN" homes will have their first opportunity to scream their delight in the Junior League play, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," this afternoon, when paid performances begin. For three matinees the Elizabeth Peabody Settlement Houses children have greeted the players' efforts with such vigorous applause that all feel most encouraged. To Mrs. Henry H. Johnson, Jr., president of the Junior League Players, and Mrs. Timothy Walker goes much of the credit for the success of the production. Both devoted hours to costumes and settings. Miss Constance Percival is in charge of properties and Miss Jane McGrew is stage manager.

FROM LONDON COMES NEWS of preparations for the presentation of about 25 American debutantes to Queen Mary at the first two courts next month. So they can meet King George as well. Her Majesty is inviting them all to the royal garden party in the Buckingham Palace grounds at the end of July. Although the Queen is allowing debs to wear much more colorful gowns this year, the white veils and feathers are still strictly enforced. The application of a widely known Anglo-American girl to be allowed to wear an all-scarlet costume was at once refused.

PRINCE GEORGE, WHOSE ADMIRATION for Hollywood film beauties landed him in confinement to quarters aboard a British warship off Santa Barbara after a two-day party, A. W. O. L. last September, has apparently been forgiven by his royal parents. He is to play host for the first time to the American debs at a "surprise party" in June. This party will probably be staged at Claridge's—with a royal watchdog at the door. The private suite of the youngest and handsomest prince at Buckingham Palace is thought to be too restricted for this sort of a party

WILLIAMS COLLEGE Editor thought "O.Gs." couldn't win!

But look what happened when a third of the student body compared the 4 leading cigarettes . . . with names concealed

THE WILLIAMS RECORD, TUESDAY, MARCH 26, 19

'OLD GOLD' CHALLENGES AND WINS IN CIGARETTE 'TEST'

Challenging the statement appearing in the columns of THE RECORD of February 26 that Williams men have a distinct preference for ——— cigarettes as proven by the fact that that brand outsells competitors in local shops, the Old Gold company last Friday afternoon conducted one of its famous "concealed name tests" at Williams. As a result, Williams has joined the growing list of colleges and universities which have given Old Gold a plurality in such a contest, for out of the 234 votes cast, the challenging brand received 66 first choices, while two other leading makes could do no more than tie for second place with 59 votes apiece, and a fourth prominent brand received 50 preferences.

Recent tests at Princeton, Yale, Johns Hopkins, University of Michigan, University of Illinois, and Ohio State also proved that Old Gold, at least when "masked," is the favorite with collegiate smokers, while at Harvard the contest was lost by three votes.

To admit no unfairness into the test, each brand of cigarette was denoted by one of five possible numbers, stamped on the black band concealing the name, so that comparison of numbers among those taking the test would have been difficult. The results of the voting, done entirely by number, were checked up by Seeley '29, and A. Clark '30, Business Manager and Assistant Business Manager of THE RECORD.

As a result of the try-outs held last Friday

"WHICH ONE TASTES BEST?" is the way the college newspaper put the test to one-third of the student body at this famous old New England college. The 4 leading cigarette brands were smoked with paper "masks" over the names, so that neither prejudice nor habit could influence the results.

Aristos Girls Plan Recreation House

THE ARISTOS GIRLS are to have a recreation house this summer, a place where the 500 members may spend week-ends, enjoy get-togethers and plan their concentrated drive for a permanent clubhouse.

The clubhouse is their ultimate goal and while much money has been collected for this purpose, many more thousands are still needed.

"But we will get them," Miss Helen Holland, president, assured. "Aristos girls are determined and when they are, success is almost certain."

Five years ago a group of 14 girls started the now powerful organization, numbering 500. Among the younger contingents it is one of the most outstanding.

Its philanthropies are many and include donations of $500 for the past two years to the St. Elizabeth Hospital. An innovation of the past year bore ripe fruits when families, suggested by club members, were supplied with milk.

Alice Wentworth, Helene Hawkes, Myra Morris and Katherine Krohn are officers of the club, assisting President Holland.

Helen Holland

The Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine is spiritual director of the club and under his guidance the progress of the club has been enviable.

Tonight the girls entertain their mothers at an informal reception and musicale at the League House, 1 Arlington st. Marie Brandon and Ruth Killian, past presidents, will pour. The following members of the board of government will act as ushers: Mrs. Henry Roche, Mrs. Thomas O'Daly, Dorothea Ness, Winifred Lynch, Margaret Boyle, Carolyn Kenny, Dorothy Colucci, Josephine Dolan, Mary Jarrington and Josephine Dolan.

The club is promoting a dinner dance to be held at the Ocean House, Swampscott, June 5.

BOSTON DAUGHTERS OF MAINE, INC.

On a motion of Mrs. Frank F. Hill it was voted to loan $50 to a worthy Maine student that her education might be furthered. As member of the scholarship fund, Mrs. Hill inspired the loan, after a letter which she received from Augustus O. Thomas, commissioner of education for Maine, was read.

"Very often we have requests from young people who find it difficult to pursue their education for want of funds," the commissioner wrote. "Either $50 or $100 would be a great help to a worthy young man or woman."

Mrs. Annie L. Carmichael was re-elected president; Mrs. Mattie E. Seale, Mrs. Ruth M. Haley, Mrs. Nellie L. Roop were chosen vice-presidents; Mrs. Evelyn M. Gray, recording secretary; Mrs. Adelaide Philbrook, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lois Hill, assistant; Mrs. Alice S. Bingley, federation secretary; Mrs. Maude S. Leander, treasurer; and Mrs. Hattie H. Wagner, auditor. Annual reports were read.

BRIGHTELMSTONE CLUB

A lawday banner, the proceeds of which will help defray the recent repairs done on the clubhouse, has been successfully completed. It was a cherry blossom fete; the club was a veritable bower of flowers, those in charge of the booths wearing Japanese costumes. Mrs. Luman W. Marsh was in charge. Her assistants were Mrs. Seldon E. James, food; Mrs. Edward B. Cox, miscellaneous; Mrs. Edgar W. Riley, candy; Mrs. Harry Walton, aprons; Mrs. Henry W. Inman, white elephant; Mrs. Walter A. Crosby, children; Mrs. John W. Ayer, books; Mrs. Marshall Fuller, grabs, and Mrs. Stuart A. Colpitts, restaurant.

FEDERATION OF MUSIC CLUBS

The Boston local board for the convention to be held the week of June 8 met at a conference at the Hotel Statler at which Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelley, national president, was present. Also Mrs. Frank A. Salzbring, national past president; Mrs. Charles D. Davis, national program chairman. A tea was held and several noted guests were present, including Mrs. Frank G. Allen and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller.

Plans for the biennial festival were discussed. Mrs. William Arms Fisher, is to be the general chairman.

Big Grain Blockade Feared at Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., April 26 (AP)—With the elevators here nearly full, a long waiting list at Montreal and 43 freighters to arrive at this port with 12,678,000 bushels of grain between now and Sunday afternoon, one of the worst grain blockades in the history of the port of Buffalo is threatened, local marine men said tonight. Much of the grain is for reshipment to the Canadian city or through the Barge Canal to New York.

LENOX STORE IN MALDEN OPENS

Another link in the chain of stores operated by the Lenox Jewelry Co. of Boston will be opened in Malden tomorrow. The new store will be under the management of Joseph Montello, who has been in the Boston offices of the company a number of years.

Aside from its importance in marking a step in the growth of the Lenox Jewelry Co., the new Malden store at 53 Pleasant st. is notable as an attractive addition to the mercantile establishments of the city. The architectural treatment is Colonial throughout, from the threshold of brick tiles to the most minute details of decoration.

The entrance doorway is Colonial in design with fluted pilasters at the sides and pyramid highlights above. Bullseye panes and old Colonial brass hardware ornament the door itself. The interior is of old-fashioned sheathing, copied from the Paul Revere house in North sq., Boston. Interior finish is in mahogany with decorations in warm brown and cream tones.

As an outside advertising display, the store is equipped with a Neon-type sign in an unusual and interesting diamond design, with an ingenious flashing device to simulate the sparkle of gems.

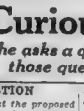
The Curious Quizzer

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

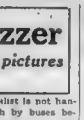
THE QUESTION

Do you believe that the proposed increase in length of passenger-carrying buses from 28 to 33 feet will hamper traffic?



MISS FLORENCE COOK, 37 Pearl st., Everett—I don't see where the increase in length of passenger buses will hamper traffic, because the width of the machines won't be increased and what difference a little length will make will not be noticed. If the seating arrangement is changed to give greater comfort to the passengers through the five foot increase, a great step would be taken in the advancement of this mode of transportation. The present buses, 28 feet long, offer very little comfort to the passenger due to the necessity of placing seats close together. On this item alone, I say, lengthen the buses the five feet, and don't worry about the traffic.

JOSEPH DALLAS, 108 Kendall St., Framingham—There isn't any reason why an extra five feet on the length of passenger buses would cause any trouble with traffic, and as far as I'm concerned, I wish they would tack on five or more feet. I think the suggestion has merit, and hope it is acted on and brought to a conclusion very soon. The buses as we have them today are fairly easy riding, but the leg-room isn't what it might be. The additional five feet could clear this point up in great style, and then we would have complete comfort while using this method of conveyance. The automobilist is not handicapped very much by buses because the drivers are very polite about the use of the road, so there couldn't be any complaint on the added length of the buses.



MISS JOSEPHINE MATTEN, 76 Rodman st., Quincy—If the length of passenger buses was increased we would be forced to drive our automobiles on the roofs of buildings, and pedestrians would be completely out of luck. The buses are long enough now without adding more footage to them. As it is they need half the road to turn a corner, and this pushes all other traffic over near the curbing. Add to the length of these road trolleys and you will most assuredly add to the traffic tangle.

JOSEPH GNECCO, 108 Kendall st., Framingham—It would be the greatest thing for the bus traveling public, since the inception of the buses themselves, to have them five feet longer. I heartily agree with the suggestion, and can't see why there should be any argument about the possible increase of the traffic jam.

We will have traffic jams as long as we have traffic, so what difference does a little longer wheelbase on buses make? I will grant that the buses are as wide as they could possibly be made, but they are not nearly as long as they might be. How could a 33-foot bus compare with the trucks with long trailers behind them? These trucks are a serious menace to traffic, but a 33-foot bus would not be any more of a traffic problem than the present size of bus.

The Baer Facts

BY ARTHUR "HUGS" BAER

WELL, the constitution follows the fling and the amendments chase them both

It's a thrilling race with Mr. Jones covering more territory in the telephone book than he does in the law budget.

Both Tex Guinan and Helen Morgan have now played parlor games with orthodox judicial juries. We were present at both trials, but we forget whether it was from curiosity or request.

Tex laughed her way out of court. Helen wept an exit as clean as the Mississippi taking a detour

Proving that music hath charms to soothe the savage agent, tears will soften the most adamant camera, the eye is quicker than the ear trumpet and the rain check is more powerful than the postponed game.

When Tex started to wise crack the jury might as well have been wearing 12 college jerseys with a big G on them.

The boys were on Tex's team.

They had joined the alumni of Guinan University of Knowledge, Research and Aspirin Tablets

Helen went right into her ballade. When she swiveled those big, dark, Persian eyes on the jury the dozen professors must have thought that Aladdin had two lamps with the wicks burning brightly.

Helen didn't wise-crack. She knew that Paris gave the apple to Aphrodite in return for the power to carry off another and more ancient Helen.

This time Paris was New York and Helen would give it the sauce of the apple

She wept gently, sobbing from stem to stern. No jury could withstand the effect of the tremolo muttering that ensues only when a lioness has been shorn of her cubs and a hostess is in danger of losing a night club

Strong men do not weep and sob. They are cast in a sterner mold and moulder

But you could see that those 12 academic jurors were as much affected as a night watchman who finds sleeping powders in his dinner pail.

When Helen turned on the tears she had that jury by the whiskers and was dragging them to a barber shop.

CHILDREN! SEND LINDY CLUB APPLICATIONS NOW

"Contact!"

That is what they cry out at a flying field when an aviator is ready to take off. The giant propeller is whirled. A roar of the motor and way the plane goes, up, up until it is like a dot in the sky.

We call "contact" to members of the Boston American Lindbergh Club and to those boys and girls who have put off sending in their memberships to this great and glorious club which will honor Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride next June by presenting them a silver replica of "The Spirit of St. Louis" as a wedding gift.

Every New England boy and girl who puts off joining our club is going to miss a whole lot of good times

Just think of that trip to Washington with your mother or father. Wouldn't you like to go. You bet you would. And you can make it if you follow the instructions. Fill out the enrollment blank you'll find in the Boston Evening American and send it in with a penny. Then write an essay of 50 or more words on "What Lindy Means to Us." The boys and girls who write the 12 best essays will go to Washington to make the presentation of the wedding gift to Lindy and his bride

Our club is divided into two divisions—Juniors and Seniors. The Juniors include boys and girls from 8 to 12 years. The Seniors from 13 to 18 years. Six will be selected from each division to make the trip to Washington.

THEATER PARTY

Now about our theater party We started mailing out tickets today Be sure to look at the date printed on each ticket as it will be good only on the date printed on it We are making 500 tickets for the regular performances at B. F. Keith's Boston Theater each day. The tickets will be sent out in the order in which applications for membership in the American Lindbergh Club came in. In other words if you were one of the first to join the club you will receive your ticket sooner than the boys and girls who joined later. So every member must be patient about receiving his or her ticket to this magnificent $1,000,000 theater, where only the highest character of entertainment and amusements are presented, including first-run pictures

Be sure to wear your american Lindbergh Club button and have your membership card to show the doorman at the theater. If you have only your card or only your button you will not be admitted. Don't make a mistake and be disappointed. We want you to enjoy one of the fine shows that are produced every week at this palatial theater.

Another article on how to build a model airplane appears in today's Boston Evening American It has been prepared specially for members of the Lindbergh Club by Frank Tonis, an expert on building model planes. Now a word to every member of our club to build at least one of these B. O. C planes which Tonis is describing

DEMONSTRATION MAY 4

For the boys and girls who do build these planes, and they are really easy to make, we will have a special demonstration on May 4 and will award prizes for the various stunts which the planes do. We also have a real secret which we will let everyone in on if they come to this demonstration. The exact time and place will be announced in a day or so. Tonis will be present to answer all questions about making model planes Other models more difficult to build will be flown to give members of the Lindbergh club an idea of how fascinating this sport really is.

There still are some treats in store for the boys and girls of our club who live outside Greater Boston. Just what they are we won't tell now. But it is a sure bet those who fail to join our club will be sorry, so join now and read the American every day for news about these surprises.

We still are receiving many applications for membership But we want more. You know the old saying—"the more, the merrier," and we certainly are going to have some merry times. Membership cards and buttons are being mailed out every hour of the day. But even then we are behind our work. So be patient if you don't get your button and card right away. You will receive it very soon.

Display your button on your coat lapel or blouse so your friends will know you have joined one of the largest and more popular clubs ever formed in New England. Tell your chums about our club They, too, will want to enjoy the good times which are coming. But they won't be able to do so if they are not members.

Send your letters and membership coupons to "Editor, Boston Evening American Lindbergh Club, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass."

Name and Address on Lindy Essay Important

All members of the American Lindbergh Club must write their full name, address, and age on the top of their essays on "What Lindy Means to Me."

That your age appears on your essay is quite important, as six members will be selected from the junior division and six members from the senior division to make that trip to Washington. Members between 8 and 12 years old will be classed in the junior division and those between 13 and 18 years old will be classed in the senior division.

Tex Guinan's Club to Move

New York, April 26 (INS)—Texas Guinan has capitulated in the dispossess action brought against her club Intime by the Hotel Harding. The resort will move its quarters within the next few days.

HOMER'S PLANS UNIQUE SALE

In connection with their 45th anniversary sale, Homer's, diamond merchants and jewelers at 35-39 Winter St., have adopted an odd and interesting scheme of decoration.

The store is advertised as the "Homer City of Values" and each of the wide aisles and cross passageways are designated by street names, avenue names, court and square names.

Each street has its lamp-post reproduced, carrying the street's name—an old fashioned lamp tops the post and the light from its lantern seen through glass panels gives the entire effect a touch of beauty.

This sale has taken on a New England wide importance on account of impending openings of several New England branches in a proposed Homer chain organization.

DEATH TAKES MRS. PHELAN

Mrs. Josephine Phelan, Roxbury resident, died today at her home, 31 Rockford st, in her 81st year She was the widow of William J Phelan, who died 14 years ago and the mother of Thomas F. Phelan of the Boston Evening American editorial staff.

The son is the only survivor The death of her daughter May last autumn was a shock from which Mrs. Phelan never recovered She had a second son, Edmund J Phelan, also a newspaperman, prominent temperance worker and organizer here of the Irish National Foresters Benefit Society.

STONE WANTED TO HEAD LAW REVISION

Washington, April 26 (AP)—President Hoover is understood to be seeking the services of Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone of the U. S. Supreme Court as chairman of his national law enforcement commission.

Information in some quarters is that the former attorney general is reluctant to retire from the highest court to undertake the task which the chief executive has announced will be entrusted to the commission—that of exhaustively studying the whole federal, judicial and enforcement machinery and submitting recommendations for its reorganization.

Efforts of the President to have Justice Stone form the arch around which the commission personnel will be built are believed to account in the main for the unexpected delay in announcing the members.

Officer Recovers

Patrolman Nelson Copeland of the East Dedham st. police station has been discharged from Boston City Hospital and is expected to report for police duty today. Officer Copeland is one of the most popular men at that station. He has been suffering from heart strain.

TAX REDUCTION FAVORED BY WHITMAN

Edmund A. Whitman, prominent Boston lawyer and for many years active in the work of the Board of Public Welfare in Cambridge, today went on record as heartily favoring the purposes of the Boston Evening American Federal Income Tax campaign.

Echoing sentiments expressed by leaders of the bar, prominent clergymen, bankers, doctors, social workers and scores of prominent citizens, he added special observations from the viewpoint of one who has had much to do with conditions of want and distress. Whitman is a member of the law firm of Elder, Whitman, Wayburn and Crocker, with headquarters in the Pemberton Building, Boston. He was a member of the Inter-Allied Reparations Commission after the war, and had a prominent part in straightening out the affairs of the Austro-Hungarian [illegible].

"The idea of relieving the tax demands now made upon moderate incomes, and finding revenue for the conduct of the Government's business in other sources of taxation is a sound one, in my opinion," said Whitman today.

Poison Victim

SENATE TO VOTE ON FARM BILL BY THURSDAY

Washington, April 26 (INS)—Another test of President Hoover's influence with the new Congress drew nearer today as the House sent the Haugen $500,000,000 co-operative marketing bill, said to have the President's approval, to the Senate.

The critical stage of the farm relief fight is scheduled for next week. Senator McNary (R.), Oregon, chairman of the agriculture committee, announced he would drive his own farm bill toward a final vote next Thursday.

Senator Borah, one of Mr. Hoover's spokes in the campaign, indicated that he might desert the "Hoover program" for the debenture plan. He said he is inclined to favor it, but has not definitely decided.

Hoover's rejection of the debenture plan will be endorsed by the Senate by at least a nine-vote margin, it was revealed by an International News Service poll.

The poll showed 43 Republicans and five Democrats pledged against the debenture form. This "last ditch" strength assured victory to the President, since it is an exact majority of the Senate, where there are 96 senators.

The poll revealed eight Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and 28 Democrats pledged to the debenture. The remaining 10 announced they were undecided.

NEW HOPE FOR REPARATIONS

Paris, April 26 (AP)—French financial circles believed today that the Reichsbank, in raising its discount rate from 6½ to 7½ per cent, had eased the situation presented by serious depletion of the bank's gold reserve.

Every hour has brought reports of new offers in the reparations negotiations.

The Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune today said Dr. Hjalmar Schacht had offered to raise the annuity at least for the first few years to 1,750,000,000 marks (about $420,000,000) if the financial condition of Germany was found to warrant it and if transfer of a certain part of the payments could be delayed.

"Two Fingers Below Knees, Girls, Mind!"

Rome, April 26 (AP)—A minimum for short skirts has been prescribed by Augusto Turati, secretary of the Fascist party. His order reads: "Young and even little Italian girls, should by their costumes give the impression of the severity of the Fascist education, which has been imparted to them, and when they go out in uniform their skirts should come at least two fingers' length below their knees."

WILL FREE RICE IN DEATH CASE

Willimantic, Ct., April 26 (INS)—The state today dropped its charge of first degree murder against Trenor A. Rice, deputy sheriff indicted two months ago for the death of William E. Jackson, county detective, and steps were taken to release Rice from the county jail at Brooklyn, where he has been held without bail since Jackson was shot to death in his home here.

Howard C. Bradford, state's attorney for Windham county, told Judge Marvin in Superior Court that he was not satisfied of Rice's innocence in the death of Jackson, but that he was certain Rice could not be convicted.

Bryan's Daughter Gets Signal Honor

Washington, April 26—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Democratic Representative in Congress from Florida, and daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, has the honor of being the first woman to address the new and overwhelmingly Republican 71st Congress.

A bill giving back to Floridans land that was to have been utilized by the Government, but which was never occupied, brought Mrs Owen to the floor for her first speech. She explained its provisions in a clear, audible, unaffected voice.

The bill was passed unanimously.

Eviction for 145 Strikers

Newmarket, N. H., April 26—Eviction notices had today been served on the families of 145 striking employes of the Newmarket Manufacturing Co.

According to orders signed by Agent Walter B. Galiant, the occupants must be out of the homes by May 23, or eviction proceedings will take place.

The company owns approximately 250 tenements, many of which are finely constructed houses in a picturesque section of the town known as Back Bay. The situation has now developed to such a dismal outlook for the town and section that Gov. Charles W. Tobey has asked for a parley with Treas. Charles Walcott in the hope of forestalling the removal of a large part of the mill to Lowell, Mass.

At a meeting in Foresters Hall, operatives made plans for a mass meeting to be held Sunday afternoon in the Town Hall, at which time E. W. Green of Concord, secretary of the New Hampshire State Federation of Labor and one other labor leader will be speakers.

Borah Gives New Gavel to Curtis

Washington, April 26 — Vice-President Charles Curtis was presented a new gavel by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, thus adding one more to the seven the vice-president has in reserve. It was reported Curtis broke one of his collection yesterday while attempting to maintain order in the Senate.

5000 READY TO FLEE FLOOD IN ILLINOIS

Quincy, Ill., April 26 (AP)—Hurling its tremendous bulk southward in the biggest rise since 1851, the Mississippi today was waging a new assault that may break through every levee for 75 miles below Keokuk, Iowa, leave 5000 people homeless, and cause damage that might reach $5,000,000.

Sheriff Kenneth A. Elmore ordered officials of the 14,000-acre Lima Lake district, 10 miles north of here, to have families ready to move promptly in case of emergency.

This district was causing the greatest worry today, with levees capable of standing only about six inches more rise, and with a foot and one-half increase expected. At least 1000 persons live in this section.

The 400 people in the Gregory district, across the river from the Lima Lake-Hunt section, also were preparing to evacuate almost anytime. This district consists of about 9000 acres.

Final Tacna-Arica Act Up to Hoover

Lima, Peru, April 26 (AP)—An authoritative source said settlement of the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute with Chile, expected to be signed within a few days, would be announced by President Herbert Hoover of the United States in his capacity of arbitrator of the long-standing dispute.

President Hoover inherited with his office the mediation asked of the American President in 1922.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Peter Blair, down and out in New York, takes a job as chauffeur for Madelon Dillon. Sam Hoffman, Miss Dillon's rich friend, objects to Peter, but finally she and Sam leave for Atlantic City. Peter is told to use the car. Steve Howatt, an ex-convict, badly wounded, asks Peter to deliver $10,000 to a fellow prisoner, Big George Kelly, in an up-state town. Steve thinks he's dying, and wants to reward Kelly for kindness when Peter mentions Steve's name to Kelly, the latter reviles him. Peter keeps the money and falls in love with Arline Forrest, who works in Kelly's office. He takes her motoring and expresses interest in her.

He meets Lucille West, who shows her admiration for him openly. At a party he fights with Kelly, and later tells Arline her employer's past history, begging her to have nothing more to do with him.

Arline refuses him. He is heartbroken. He becomes one of a wild party with Lucille.

He rescues Lucille from a fire in the roadhouse, is badly burned and taken to the hospital. Miss Dillon appears. Arline breaks with Kelly, and Peter is happy again.

CHAPTER 6

AROUND Arline's previous repulse of Peter, and her engagement to Big George Kelly was an obscurity that befogged the whole thing in Peter's mind.

"We can't make a mistake this time, Peter—it's too important to both of us," she told him seriously. "If we are intended for each other—"

"We are!" he affirmed. "There's no one for me but you, Arline, and if I thought you loved me—well, I don't think I'd ever be able to believe it as long as I live. It would be one of those things too good to be true."

Peter turned his head. Across the lobby George Kelly, who had just entered, was looking at them both with a quiet, malignant expression.

Arline, at the some moment, saw Kelly and, like Peter, she was struck speechless.

"I see you two people have got together again," said Kelly in a casual voice.

"Please—" Arline's voice trembled slightly. "Please don't make a scene . . . I wish you would go away."

"I'm not going to make a scene, Arline," he said. "But I'm not going away until I have shown you a few things about this young fellow that you seem to be in doubt of."

Arline got up out of her chair.

"This is the most brutal thing I ever heard of," she declared indignantly. "You should be ashamed to come and harass a sick boy who is barely able to be out of bed."

"Sit down." Peter told her quietly. "I think it might be a good thing, Arline, to hear once for all what Kelly has to say."

Kelly lit another cigar.

"For one thing, I'm going to show Arline that you're not in her class at all. Did you tell her you were chauffeur for a woman?"

"I did."

"Did you tell her that this was a—I think I will be perfectly frank—a gold digger?"

"I didn't use language like that to her, Kelly, because she wouldn't understand what it just makes me think less of you, Mr. Kelly."

"I suppose you hate me now because I'm blocking this fellow's game," Kelly returned smoothly. Now I'm going to talk right out. Arline, this fellow here is living with that woman. Don't make any mistake about the kind of doll she is, either. She's what they call a 'gold digger' in New York, and that's flattering her. There is an ugliner name, but I'm not going to use it. Did Blair tell you that she came from New York, paid all his bills and moved into the hotel with him?"

Arline's face was flaming.

"It's a lie!" she breathed.

"He didn't tell you about the heavy love scene they had together just before he came downstairs here to meeet you, did he? You didn't know I knew about that, did you Blair?

MEXICO SENDS NUN TO "DEVIL'S ISLE"

ACCUSED WOMAN IS TO FACE 'LIVING DEATH'

Mexico City, April 26 (AP)—Mother Concepcion, the Roman Catholic nun convicted and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment as "intellectual author" of the assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, will soon be taken to "Las Tres Marias"—the Three Marys—Mexico's island prison colony.

She will be one of the first women to be confined at the island penitentiary, which has attained a reputation of treatment for male prisoners as sometimes "worse than death."

Recently a new Governor appointed by the Portes Gil administration for the island announced that the whip and other such implements of punishment would be banished and prisoners afforded means of diversion. Newspaper accounts said the prisoners "wept with joy" at the news.

The prison authorities, in announcing imminent removal of Mother Concepcion, said that all other women convicted of direct or indirect participation in anti-government activities, particularly the so-called "Cristero" revolt would be sent to the island prison colony.

In order to reach Manzanillo, where she will debark for the island prison, it will be necessary for Mother Conception to be taken through the State of Jalisco, where the so-called religious rebels have been active recently. Her train will soon be guarded

Fin. Com. Gives Mayor Hint on Exchange St.

The Finance Commission today gave Mayor Nichols a veiled hint on how to complete the Exchange st. widening.

City Hall officials see sarcasm in this letter from Chairman Dowling of the commission:

"Your honor recently sent to the City Council a loan order for $500,000 to complete the widening of Exchange st.

"The Finance Commission recommends that your honor direct the street commissioner to obtain from the Boston Real Estate Exchange an appraisal of the value of the property to be taken by the city before damages are awarded."

It was recalled that the city, before paying $1,750,000 for two-fifths of the land first taken, engaged six so-called experts to value the property.

The finance commission claims that the figures arrived at by the experts exceeded by far the appraisal of the real estate exchange.

Delays Jail a Week for Permanent Wave

SEEK BOOTLEG IN RICH WOMAN HATER'S DEATH

Stamford, Ct., April 26 (AP)—Search for a bootlegger who police believe may throw light on the fatal shooting of Oliver Beardsley, 51, an avowed "woman hater" in connection with whose death his 28-year-old wife is being held, was underway today when Mrs. Beardsley told authorities her husband shot himself because there was "something between her and the man she knew only as 'Jim.'"

An autopsy disclosed Beardsley died from a 22-caliber bullet fired into his left temple. The fact that no powder marks were discernible and that the wound was on the left side of the head led police to hold his wife.

Before Beardsley died he mumbled that his wife had shot him.

Mrs. Beardsley said the shooting culminated a quarrel over fancied attentions paid her by a bootlegger she and her husband had just visited. She said Beardsley first accused her of drinking too much, then left the room and shot himself.

U. S. Ryder Cup Players Leading in Three Matches

FOURTH TILT SQUARED AT MOORTOWN

worst sort of weather, were witnessed by an estimated crowd of 3000 persons, who had gathered on the links in anticipation of seeing some premier golf.

They were not disappointed, as in the opening rounds the Americans, particularly Diegel and Espinosa, flashed a brand of golf seldom seen in this, or any other country.

Diegel and Espinosa won the first point by taking their match against Boomer and Duncan, seven up and five to play.

The Britons evened the score when the second foursome completed their round of 36 holes, Robson and Mitchell winning from Sarazen and Dudley, two up and one to play.

The Americans, Farrell and Turnesa, halved their match with Compston and C. Whitcombe, leaving the score tied at 1½ points each.

Walter Hagen and Johnny Golden pushed through to win the day's matches for the Americans by taking the final match two up and one to play, from Henry Cotton and E. Whitcombe.

The American victory in the foursomes gives the American team a slight advantage in the singles which will be played tomorrow. Play began under clear skies, with a cold wind blowing across the course. The greens were fast and the ground was hard. The favorable weather, however, scon changed into the most disagreeable possible. The skies became overcast, and by the time the second round was started a cold rain was falling. Within a few minutes this had changed to a driving sleet, abetted along by a biting, boisterous gale.

The players, however, stuck doggedly at their battle and their final rounds revealed consistent, brilliant golf, notwithstanding the weather conditions.

Famous Oarsman to Visit Badger Coach

Madison, Wis., April 26 — Eric Lambert, who captained and stroked the famous sophomore crew of Columbia University in 1927 will visit Wisconsin's campus this weekend.

The former Columbia oarsman will be the guest of Mike Murphy, the Badgers' young crew coach.

Lambert's rowing prowess was hailed far and wide though he was declared ineligible to compete in the Olympic trials because he was of English birth.

At the present time he is engaged in business in Chicago, and resides at Glencoe, Ill.

Salo Closing Gap in Derby

Sullivan, Mo., April 26 (AP)—With the toughest lap thus far of the run behind them the 28 survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby pocketed today toward Rolla, Mo., for their next resting place. Yesterday they completed a 61 mile run from Maplewood, Mo., to Sullivan under the worst conditions yet encountered. A stiff head wind impaired their progress and a bitter cold rain fell all day.

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Springfield College, offering one of the hardest hitting nines in its history, comes to play Boston College at the Heights this afternoon, with the purpose of pounding out a victory over the Eagle troops.

Springfield hasn't opposed a foe of the class of B. C. this spring. Most of its killing have been made against smaller teams. But in all their games the pummelling of opposing pitchers has featured.

The Y team played Mass Aggies in their last rampage and banged out 15 hits to win decisively by 10 to 4.

But the invaders are listed as being not too strong defensively. And since Boston College has a rather dangerous team with the willow and with Hugh McNulty, the ace, doing the mound work, the Eagles should win.

Coach Huch Duffy has been jumbling his lineup in practice and exhibition games. Yet there won't be any shifts today. Frank Regan will be in right field, Larry Gibson in left, and George Colbert behind the plate.

Regan and Colbert erased all doubt as to their worthiness of first string ranking in Tuesday's game with Lynn.

Farrell Confident U.S. Team Will Win

By JOHNNY FARRELL
American Open Golf Champion

Moortown, Leeds, April 26—The American team is ready for the battle, both physically and mentally, and I feel confident we will make a great start in the foursomes today in the Ryder Cup matches here.

We have had sharp, cold winds and a little snow Thursday, but the boys have prepared themselves with mittens and leather coats.

The lineup of the American team, in which Joe Turnesa has replaced Horton Smith, has probably surprised American golfers, but Smith has been driving with uncertainty with wooden-shafted clubs, to which he does not take kindly, and Turnesa on the other hand has started playing wonderful golf.

Well use all 10 players before the match is over, however, saving Smith and Al Watrous for the singles tomorrow.

Walter Hagen's good-fellowship toward the boys on our team may prove a handicap to the team's chances tomorrow, because there is no doubt our lineup would be stronger by picking our best eight players to be used on both days.

The Haig, however, does not wish to disappoint any of the boys by not giving them a chance to play in the international match.

Turnesa and myself are placed first, playing Archie Compston and Charles Whitcombe. This looks like an even break, as these two men make up a strong team and Joe and I will have to shoot the bag.

Leo Diegel and Al Espinosa play George Duncan, the British captain, and Aubrey Boomer, and as the Americans are steadier and more powerful, it looks as if they should win.

Canzoneri Picked to Beat Dorfman

New York, April 26 (INS)—Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight champion, is an 8 to 5 favorite to defeat Sammy Dorfman of New York at Madison Square Garden tonight. Dorfman was substituted for Bud Taylor, Canzoneri's original opponent, when the Terre Haute veteran broke a thumb.

If Canzoneri is defeated his bout with Andre Routis, featherweight champion in Chicago on May 7 may be called off as well as his meeting with Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, in Chicago on June 7.

Tolley Reaches Semi-Final Round

Newcastle, Eng., April 26 (AP)—Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion progressed to the semi-finals of the English native championship by winning his sixth round match from C. Gilchriest, Fulwell, five up and three to play.

Open Fight Tourney at St. Joe's Tomorrow

One of the biggest amateur shows of the year will be held in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq., tomorrow night, when St. Joseph A. T. A. S. will stage another in its great series of shows.

Tomorrow night's show will be an all open affair, with bouts in every class from the flyweight to the heavyweight, open to all comers from any part of New England. The entry list is the largest ever received for an open tourney.

The heavyweights and 160-pounders are expected to feature the show. There are more than a dozen entries in the two classes, and they should provide plenty of hard hitting and knockouts for the customers.

Further entries may be made today with William H. Cuddy, 323 Washington st., room 315.

Finnegan Picked to Beat Anderson at Chicago

HAMBONE SEEKS BOUT WITH JIM MALONEY

By JACK CONWAY

HONEYBOY FINNEGAN of Dorchester will make his Chicago bow tonight when he clashes with Eddie Anderson in a 10-round bout at the Chicago Stadium.

Dan Carroll is in Chicago with Finnegan and declares Honeyboy is fit for the contest and will win.

On the form that Anderson displayed against Jake Zeramby at the Boston Garden, Finnegan should not experience any trouble in outscoring the former cow puncher.

Jack Conway

Finnegan may be matched to battle Tod Morgan for the world's junior lightweight championship in Chicago in the event he upsets Anderson. Morgan is a big card in Chicago and would draw well if pitted against Honeyboy in view of the fact the latter holds a decision over him.

HAMBONE KELLEY is training harder for his ten-round tussle with Big Boy Rawson at the Arena on next Monday night that he has for any ring engagement he has ever been booked for. The mighty slugger has visions of punching his way to an outdoor shot with his former stable mate, Jim Maloney.

Col. McKirdy says he will give Hambone a bout with Shamus in the event he stops Rawson. This will be quite a task in view of the fact Al Lacey announces Rawson will be in the best condition of his career when he steps into action on Monday night.

THE talk to the effect that Max Schmeling will not return to the United States to battle Paulino on June 27 at the Yankee Stadium for the Milk Fund unless Arthur Bulow accepts $25,000 for his interest in his management is merely the old bull-hoo. Schmeling's own end of the Paulino bout after his managers have paid off will top $100,000 and he isn't going to pass up that much money. And if he wins over the Basque he will get $150,000 for himself when he clashes with Sharkey in September.

PHIL SCHLOSBERG has been around showing a contract he has calling for Schmeling to box Ernie Schaaf for the Boston Garden. This is one of the numerous matches the German refuses to go through with. A free puncher like Schaaf would be liable to upset some of Schmeling's million dollar plans.

It is likely that Schaaf and Maloney will clash in one of the big outdoor boxing features at Braves Field during the coming Summer.

Andy Callahan to Battle at Salem

Andy Callahan, Lawrence knockout king, has been signed to meet Joey Connolly of Dorchester in a 10-round bout at Salem on next Monday night.

Callahan has also been booked to appear at the Arena Club on May 13.

Stout in Outfield Berth for Pioneers

Vic Stout, freshman outfielder from Worcester Academy, probably will take Norman Goorze's place in right field for Boston University when the Terriers line up against Clark in the second home game of the season at Nickerson Field, Weston, tomorrow afternoon.

BATTLES BIG BOY

HAMBONE KELLEY

Hambone, local ring veteran, makes his latest attempt in the way of a comeback when he faces the tough Big Boy Rawson at the Arena on Monday night. Hambone is after a fight with Jim Maloney.

Colby Nines Play Important Games

Waterville, Me., April 26—Colby varsity and freshmen baseball teams are scheduled to play the second game of their season today. The varsity travel to Brunswick to play Bowdoin, while the freshmen stay at home and meet Hebron Academy on Beavern's field.

Both teams have been worked hard all this week and Coaches Roundy and Millett report that their charges are rounding into good condition in spite of the unfavorable weather.

The varsity game with Bowdoin will have important bearing on the State championship series standing.

Two Games for B. C. Frosh Next Week

Coach Frank McCrehan's Boston College freshman team has two games for next week. The Eaglets meet Boston University 32 at Newton on Tuesday and journey to Danvers to play St. John's Prep on Wednesday afternoon.

McCrehan's team was booked to open up with St. Anselms at the Heights, but the game was held up by the weather. Downes and McCarthy are leading the Eaglets with the bat in practice and Art O'Brien looms as a great pitching prospect.

B. U. '32 and St. John's should provide plenty of opposition in the first two games.

Twi League Feted Tonight in Reading

Sports night will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Security Hall, Reading as a send-off for the Twilight League leaders in all divisions of the world of sports will be represented.

Some of the expected guests include the immutable Nick Altrock and his partner, Al Schacht, Charlie Perry, Red Sox catcher; George Owen of Harvard and the Bruins, Lodner to bat, the owner of Babe Ruth, Lance Richbourg of the Braves, J. Warren Mooney of the Fay League, and Chuck Dillon, president of the New England League.

Eagle Golfers Meet Tech at Sandy Burr

Boston College golf team opens its season today, meeting Tech at the Sandy Burr Country Club. Tech is favored to defeat the Eagles in the opener because it is represented by a slightly better group of golfers.

B. C. will be represented by Capt Vin Roberts and Farrington, Frank Murphy and Jerry Moore and Coleman and McGraly. Nick Tedesco and Lloyd Carnegie will be the alternates on this team.

Captain Roberts is one of the best golfers in New England colleges. He is due to win most of his matches for B. C. this season.

Fast Schoolboy Nines Swing Into Action Tomorrow

BROOKLINE GOES TO RINGE DIAMOND

By DICK McSWEENEY

Although the majority of schoolboy baseball diamonds remain in bad condition due to recent rains, both schoolboy diamond coaches and fans wil watch their nines in action tomorrow.

There are many good teams due to play tomorrow afternoon.

The average fan will find it difficult to decide which contest to watch.

Some of the headliners on the bill which are sure to unfold hurling and batting thrills are Cambridge Latin at Exeter; St. John's Prep at Holy Cross frosh, Newton at Medford; B. C. high at Malden, Boston Latin at Milton Academy, Lynn Classical at Haverhill; Brookline at Ringe, and Arlington at Winchester.

More snappy games are bound to ensue with Woburn at Melrose; Wakefield at Watertown; Salem Trade at Winthrop, Concord at Stoneham; Huntington at Mines Brown; Athol at Gardner, and Concord at Stoneham.

Red Marston, Stoneham outfielder, distinguished himself recently by bouncing out four base hits in five times at bat.

Jimmy Hall Somerville pitcher, is equally adept in the box or at bat. Besides shutting out Brookline, 4 to 0, Jimmy contributed a pair of hits which helped wreck the Wealthy Towners' hopes of victory.

Quincy high golfers clash with Newton's club swingers at Brae Burn today.

Paul Murphy, Medford high second baseman, has been romping around the sand lots ever since he was able to swing a bat. Paul is a classy fielder and despite his short-ness of stature he manages to wallop the apple hard.

Somerville's chances of unseating Suburban hunting this season are very bright. There's pep and snap about the Red and Blue nine which speaks well of Charlie Dickerman's capable coaching.

Evidently Newton's baseball team thrives on handicaps. The Orange and Black proved that the loss of its home playing field and the shortage of veteran material didn't mean so much when it defeated Everett, 4-2.

Lynn English gave a demonstration of how baseball season should be opened when it slapped down Revere 13-3. Polsenius and Holloway showed especially fine control, the former fanning eight.

Hartnett Ready to Go Again

Pittsburgh, April 26 (AP)—Just when Manager Joe McCarthy was in a frenzy about his wrecked catching staff, "Gabby" Hartnett discovered his arm had healed.

Hartnett, first-string catcher for the Cubs, has been on the bench since the first week of spring training with a lame salary wing. Yesterday he tossed a ball and, for the first time in months experienced no pain.

McCarthy planned to toe him against the Pirates today.

Von Elm Makes Prince Look Good

London, April 26 (INS)—The Prince of Wales is one grand golfer—when he happens to have George Von Elm as his partner. H. R. H. and the Detroit amateur held their own yesterday in a four-ball match on the Coombe Hill course against Tommy Armour of Detroit, former United States open champion, and the Hon. Piers Legh, the Prince's equerry. They were all square at the finish.

Von Elm has abandoned all thought of playing in the British amateur championship, which was postponed last night from May 27 to June 10.

SOMERVILLE BOYS GO TO B. C.

Five of Somerville high school's star athletes will enroll at Boston College upon completion of their scholastic courses, it was announced today.

The five youths who have signified their intention of matriculating at the Maroon and Gold institution are: John Rondina, Alfred Luppi, Edmund Petersen, Charles Dresser and John Hayes. Those composing the quintet demonstrated their abilities on the gridiron last fall, as members of the Red and Blue football team.

Rondina was the all-scholastic choice of several writers for an end position. Dresser, who played center, gave a good account of himself. Luppi, Petersen and Hayes received favorable mention for their work on the Red and Blue eleven.

John Hayes made his best showing in track, winning honors at several of the indoor meets this past winter.

Luppi is the present catcher of the Somerville baseball team. He has a great throwing arm and exhibits commendable coolness in the punches.

Princeton 8 Races Tech Tomorrow

Three crews of Princeton oarsmen arrived here today and will hold two practice sessions in preparation for the regatta tomorrow afternoon with Massachusetts Institute of Technology over the Charles river basin course.

The three-race meet was attracting much attention from crew followers here, in view of the Technology victory over the strong Navy eight, and the coming race between M. I. T. and Harvard University on May 4, over the same course.

Three races will be held, the 160-pound class, the junior varsity and the varsity.

The Tiger oarsmen were slated for a run over the course this morning and another in the afternoon, while the Technology crews were to have one workout in the afternoon.

The Princeton varsity crew may use a new type of racing shell, eight feet shorter than the ordinary shell, in the race.

The new shell, which is called "The Flying Dutchman," will be used if the water is rough.

Princeton is eager to upset the jinx which the Tech varsity has held on them the past two years. Princeton expects a g. i. record this spring and wants to start out by defeating the Engineers.

Norwich Wins

Worcester, April 25—A pair of singles, followed by a brace of two baggers in the fourth inning, produced four runs for the Norwich University nine as they scored a 4-3 win over Worcester Tech.

Morgan Signs to Defend Title

Los Angeles, April 26 (INS)—Tod Morgan and "Baby" Sal Soria have signed for a match at Wrigley field, May 20, for the junior lightweight title. If Morgan loses his championship he gets 60 per cent of the gate plus $10,000 from Soria. If the latter wins the title he gets just that and not a penny in the event Soria loses or obtains a draw he receives 10 per cent of the gate receipts and Morgan 5 per cent.

Cue Stars Sail

New York, April 26 (INS)—Jake Schaefer, champion of the world at 18.2 balkline billiards, and Edouard Horemans of Belgium, former champion, will sail tonight for Antwerp to begin a two-months exhibition tournament in Belgium, Germany, Holland, Switzerland and France.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

Not to be outdone by The Country Club, who started the Central District, W. G. A. champions for three years on their downward path, Brae Burn turned on the Midland District, and now three teams are tied for first place.

Before meeting Midland, Brae Burn had not only lost both of its team matches but it had only won three individual matches.

In winning at Woodland on Thursday, Brae Burn scored just twice as many points as it had made in both of its previous matches.

Judging from the upsets which are occuring weekly, the race for the W. G. A. team match championship is going to be the best in years. The Country Club, Southern and Midland are at present out in front with Central, favored to repeat at the start of the season, tied for fourth place with Northern, that team having lost two of its three engagements.

Although the rainy weather made it a bad day for all the players, yesterday was especially tough on the undefeated players, for Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., and Miss Margaret Curtis are the lone survivors of the nine women who had won two matches.

Mrs. W. C. Quimby of be Country Club put up a stern fight to stay on the undefeated honor list, but she was forced to step out after a 2 hole match with Miss Margaret Curtis. In spite of the wretched weather which made the going both treacherous and heavy, Miss Curtis and Mrs. Quimby played well.

Miss Dorothy Richards, the Ohio state champion, returned to the Central District team lineup and won her second match of the season and put Mrs. H. M. Watson out of the undefeated class.

Mrs. W. G. Dow of Midland and Mrs. H. H. Hicks of Northern went two extra holes before they were eliminated from the honor class. Mrs. J. D. Woodin of Brae Burn accounted for Mrs. Dow, while Mrs. R. W. Knowles, of the Country Club defeated Mrs. Hicks. Both of these matches ended on the nineteenth green.

For the third time in three years, Mrs. J. H. Halnan met with defeat. Mrs. Halnan has been going through undefeated for so long that her upset at the hands of Mrs. L. H. Dalton of Southern was most unexpected.

The other two undefeated players who fell by the wayside were Miss Eleanor LaBonte of Midland and Mrs. A. G. Carver of Central. Mrs. M. Donald of Southern turned the tide against Mrs. Carver, while Mrs. E. T. Sayward of Brae Burn put Miss La Bonte out of the running.

Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Southern and Miss Margaret Curtis of Northern will fight it out for the individual honors. Last season Mrs Baker lost only one match in ten while Miss Curtis dropped two and won seven.

Miss Curtis is playing far better iron shots this season than she has shown in years and if she holds her present form will be a serious contender for the district championship title.

The Country Club is represented by the strongest W. G. A. team it has had in years. The Clyde Park players are taking a far more serious view of the team matches than they ever did in the past and unless all signs fail they will be right in the fight for the title to the end of the race.

RED SOX vs. WASHINGTON

Boston as Host to Partridge's Liberty 0010

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

JOHNNY McGRATH, who once managed Jim Maloney and Hambone Kelley, tells a humorous story about the latter which gives an idea of the famous sluggers generosity.

"I gave Hambone $2000 as his end of the purse for one of his bouts at the Arena under the direction of the late Tom Goodwin," said Johnny. "He turned half of it in at home and put the rest in a savings account in a bank in South Boston.

"'I'm going to be all set when that rainy day comes along,' chirped Hambone as he showed me his savings bankbook.

"The next day somebody asked Hambone for the loan of $5. He immediately went to the bank and withdrew the necessary money. Before the end of the day Hambone had made a dozen trips to the bank to secure money for loans.

"Hambone was also kept busy the following day withdrawing from $2 to $25 in response to touches.

"On the third day Hambone's bank balance was down to $223. He reported at the bank bright and early and asked for $5.

"'You had better make the amount of your withdrawal $223 and you will save yourself and the bank a lot of trouble,' said the paying teller.

"'I guess you're right,' replied Hambone as he pocketed the $223. 'Anyhow, I won't have to worry about my money after today, as the boys will take care of this much within a few hours.'

"HAMBONE is one of the most popular boxers to ever pull on the padded mittens. Like Babe Ruth, he has been a golden-hearted bad, boy. He bubbles over with personality and good cheer and has always been the life of the party.

"When Jim Maloney was training for his important bouts in the days when Shamus Mattled under the direction of McGrath, Hambone was always a member of the camp. Maloney has a tendency to be serious when preparing for a ring test, and the light-hearted Hambone made him forget his cares.

"Like Ruth, Hambone has toned down as the years have rolled by. He is in the midst of a come-back drive. He feels there is still enough dynamite in his punches to enable him to lick the opposition. When Hambone collects his purses now, he puts the money in the bank and it stays there. He is still the darling of the mob, but he realizes he cannot go on in the ring forever.

"COL. BOB McKIRDY has Hambone in with Big Boy Rawson at the Arena on next Monday night. This looms up as SOME battle. Each bird carries a haymaker in each hand, and as a result there should be action.

"I'LL be at the ringside when Hambone gets tangled up with Rawson. I know that I'm sure of witnessing some real fighting any time the old Hambone steps to bat and starts blazing away.

"Col. Bob McKirdy has mentioned something about a bout between Hambone and Maloney in the event the mighty socker gets past Rawson. Fenway Park would not be any too large for the crowd which want to see that jam.

"JOHNNY McGRATH, who piloted Hambone and Maloney to fame, will forget his real estate business long enough on Monday night to drift up to the Arena to watch the fireworks. Even a blase business man like Johnny must have his thrills. And so far, Hambone has never failed him."

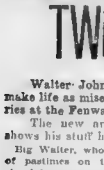
Senators in Fenway Fray With Red Sox Today

SOX AND SENATORS PLAY TWO-GAME SERIES

By NICK FLATLEY

Walter Johnson and his Senators are in town today, to make life as miserable as possible for the Red Sox in a brief series at the Fenway.

The new and most popular American League manager shows his stuff here today and tomorrow, and then goes away to work against the Yanks until the showers blotted out the Thursday fray, will go back this afternoon if that predicted southwest storm doesn't flood the ball yard. Jack has had a good rest and is ready.



Nick Flatley

Manager Johnson is likely to use Adolf Liska, his new boy sensation. This is the 20-year-old child, who won 20 out of 24 games in the International last year.

He's an underhand server, with worlds of stuff. Down in the South he had most of the batters swinging as if they were chasing butterflies. His deliveries twist in peculiar fashion, something after the Carl Mays manner.

LISKA FINE PROSPECT

The pitcher is young, but he's as cool as a Boston evening, and unless appearances deceive, he will build up quite a record for himself. He hasn't had the big league experience, but he looks for all the world like one of those rarely gifted birds, who don't need it to catch on.

The clash of these teams will interest the fans. Both clubs are made over, and the changes came from that swap last winter. Reeves, playing third for the Sox, was at short for the Senators in the last campaign. Buddy Myer, the 1928 Boston hero, is now the third baser for the invaders.

Pitcher Gaston, who works for Carrigan, used to be a Senator and naturally, would like to take a shot at his old playmates. These Senators have a new infield, with the exception of Joe Judge, the perennial star, who goes along smoothly and powerfully, when the rushing years should have chased him back to the minors.

Goose Goslin, who had a tin arm a year ago, is back for this campaign with a recovered wing, so the boys will miss the stirring spectacle of the shortstop running back to take baseballs away from the Goose. The big boy is so happy over his cure that he's loading the league sluggers.

Big Walter, who won his share of pastimes on the historic orchard is now set on winning 'em by master-minding from the bench. He will let others do the pitching, while he tries to think things out in proper and triumphal form.

The fastest pitcher of them all has a good ball club. Most baseball men figure that his team will land right back of the Yanks and Athletics. The Senators are a hard hitting, good fielding outfit, who need only steady pitching to stick right in there.

To date the team hasn't caused any earthquake, but it's too early for form to count. Big Mister Johnson has three or four good pitchers, and if he can sell some of his own pitching to a few youngsters, he'll just have to be up there.

While the Senators are dreaming of pennants, the Red Sox are figuring that this Washington team is one of the clubs they may beat out. The dope means nothing to the athletes. The Carrigans haven't started to roll smoothly yet themselves, but are right on the edge of real form.

SOX CONFIDENT

A couple of games with the Yanks, which resulted in a 50-50 split, have removed the nerves, and filled the young men with the notion that the season is on, and that the time for tremors and worries has passed.

The Sox shows a commendable spirit of hustle and fight, even when they're taking it on the chin. They have qualities, and Boston fans are sure that Bill Carrigan can bring them out. Give Bill pitching and he'll do that little thing.

BADGER GRID TEAMS TILT

Madison, Wis., April 26—Wisconsin's football squad started the second three weeks of its spring practice today facing a rigid program of daily scrimmage.

Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite and his staff are now classifying the players who will comprise the varsity and reserve squads next fall.

Signal drill on a dozen plays has marked the work of the Badgers in this week's rehearsals. Forward passing, punting and pass receiving have also been stressed.

Spring practice will close two weeks from Saturday, when Thistlethwaite expects to have a good line on the boys who are potential varsity material.

Records Shattered in Penn Carnival

By DAVIS J. WALSH

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Penn., April 26—Tom Churchill of Oklahoma, the "second Osborne," and Barney Berlinger of Pennsylvania, the "other Thorpe," could do no better than get in the money in the 100-meter dash, opening event in the all-around test at the Pennsylvania relay carnival this morning.

The race went to Everett Utterback of Pittsburgh, who was clocked in 11 2-5 seconds, excellent time in the face of conditions that were none too good.

The day was dark, the track heavy and a flighty wind blew right into the teeth of the field as it raced down to the tape. Berlinger tied with Clarion Cosh, Georgetown, for second place at 11-25 seconds. Churchill, winner of the Kansas relay title with a record total of points, finished in a dead heat with Robert L. Todd, Indiana, for fourth place at 11 7-10 seconds. Utterback next stepped to the jumping pits and astonished the multitude, numbering all of 133 persons, and cleared 23 feet 1 inch.

Dan Klinger, Alfred University; Leo Sexton, Georgetown, and Dave Myers, New York University, both scratched their entries before the event.

UTTERBACK SETS RECORD.

Utterback's jump of 23 feet 1⅞ inches in the running broad jump was a new games record for the Decathlon, and gave the Pittsburg negro quite a lead toward the title. He had 1676.406 points at this juncture, against 1590.86 for Berlinger and 1476.70 for Churchill.

The latter jumped 21 feet 3¾ inches to take fourth, and Berlinger finished third in the event with 21 feet 5¼ inches. Second place went to Todd, who cleared 21 feet 5⅞ inches to take third place in the point score with a total of 1460.85.

Berlinger furnished the second record for the event by getting a distance of 44 feet 6 inches with the shot to take the lead from Utterback in the point score.

The latter could do no better than 36 feet 8 inches, finishing eighth. Todd was second in the event with 41 feet 3 inches, and Churchill was fourth with 39 feet 9 inches. The order of the leaders after three events were Berlinger 2324.88 points, Utterback 2256.906 points, Todd 2220.95 points, and Churchill 2155.70 points.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a Richmonette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

MAY MATCH DE VOS AND HUDKINS

New York, April 26 (AP)—Unless there's a drastic change in Promoter Tex Rickard's plans, it appears that Rene De Vos and Ace Hudkins will pinch hit for Paulino Uzcudun and Max Schmeling at the milk fund charity boxing show in the Yankee Stadium June 27.

Paulino and Herr Max are down for a 15-round bout as the chief attraction of the program shows. But Max has upset the arrangements by his refusal to return to the United States until he has rid himself of the services of his German manager, Arthur von Bulow.

Herr Max wants his fairs managed by Joe Jacobs, the American fight handler, and until he has achieved that he declares he will not fight. Jacobs hopes to be able to persuade the Teuton heavyweight that it is to his best interests to appear against Paulino and then attempt to clear up his managerial difficulties.

Sponsors of the show, however, are getting worried. Efforts now are to be made to match De Vos and Hudkins. De Vos and Hudkins, leading contenders for Mickey Walker's middleweight championship, fought a torrid 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden last winter.

37 Prep Schools Enter Wisconsin Meet

Madison, Wis., April 26—Thirty-seven prep schools have entered 500 track and field athletes in the sixth annual Midwest Relays of the University of Wisconsin, scheduled for tomorrow.

The last official entry was received from Hyde Park high school of Chicago by Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, manager of the meet.

Fifteen Illinois schools will be represented, the strongest of which are Rockford Senior, Waukegan, Freeport, Galesburg and five Chicago institutions.

Crown Point and Froebel of Gary are the Indiana entries, while Dubuque high of Dubuque, Ia., will also be present. Six Milwaukee teams, three Madison and 10 from the state are the Wisconsin representatives.

California Picks Women's Net Team

San Francisco, April 26 (AP)—Six women tennis players have been named by the California Lawn Tennis Association to represent California in the Eastern tournaments this season.

Mrs. L. A. Harry, Berkeley, and Ethel Burkhardt and Josephine Crookshank both of San Francisco, were selected from the junior division, and Evelyn Parsons, Patsy McCoy and Marian Hunt, all of San Francisco, from the junior division.

Apice, Rawson Win National Titles

Chicago, April 25—Paris Apice of Providence won the flyweight junior N. A. A. U. title over Woodrow Williams of St. Louis.

Tommy Rawson of Boston won the second title for New England when he knocked out Carl Schmid of Grand Rapids, Mich., in the first round of a bout in the lightweight division.

HUSKY NINE IN GO WITH R. I. TOMORROW

With the cancellation of its last three games, Northeastern baseball team is confident of winning it fifth start against Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I., tomorrow.

The Husky-Staine conflict was called off

Hal Somerville, southpaw who held Dartmouth to four hits in six innings, will pitch.

Coach Bond expects the Lawrence Junior to repeat tomorrow. Capt. Neil Mahoney, who has missed only five innings of varsity ball in four years, will do the receiving.

The starting Husky infield against Rhode Island State is uncertain. Eddie Goodwin, veteran, will be at first base, however, with Warren Nutter, regular last year, at third.

Herb Tiffany, three sports star, is favored to be at second base with Bill Carter, ex-Needham captain at shortstop.

Dick Cook, a teammate of Nutter's at Medford who started out the season at third base on account of the latter's shoulder injury, is a prospective outfield starter.

Bond believes that Cook, a varsity hurdler, belongs in the outfield.

Ray Richardson, utility, leading the Husky batter with a mark of .556, will start in left field. Although a catcher, Bill Symanevich, hard hitting basketball luminary, is likely to replace almost any regular who continues to look weak at the bat.

Quality Hard Faced Worsted Suits $22.50

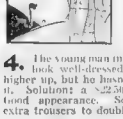
Worsteds for wear and satisfaction, from the most famous mills in America—the kind used in much higher priced clothes.

Filene's MEN'S STORE

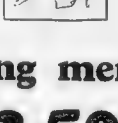
4 men who might wear our new $22.50 suits, and 4 reasons why they'd prefer them:

1. The family man whose modest income has so many demands for insurance, the home he's buying, clothes for the children. To him it means buying the best for the smallest outlay. He'd buy our sturdy worsted suits at $22.50—and probably want the extra trousers at $6.

2. The young fellow of 25 who likes the social life and lots of it. He wants to be smartly dressed every minute, he wants the new styles when they're new and for that reason buys new suits often. Hence, best style, smallest outlay. That's what he'll find at Filene's.



3. The young fellow in college. The less he spends on clothes the farther his allowance goes. Which means more money for the proms and house parties and theatres. He'd no doubt choose a light-colored tweed suit, and buy knickers that matched for $6 more.



4. The young man in business. He can't look well-dressed as well as the man higher up, but he hasn't the salary to do it. Solution? a $22.50 suit at Filene's. Good appearance. Sound value. And extra trousers to double the wear, at $6.

Men's and young men's suits, $22.50

—all with the usual Filene guarantee of satisfaction, in a new, permanent department

See the smart, pin-checked worsteds!

See the style points, raised sleeve-heads, peak lapels, shaped sleeves

See yourself in one of them . . . note how well they fit . . . note the attractive fabrics and Spring colorings!

Martha Lee Tells of Good Breakfasts

IF a questionnaire were to be sent to every family living in a country asking how many really enjoyed breakfast, what proportion of answers would be in the affirmative? In so many households breakfast is a scramble with every one in a hurry and at least one person having got out of the wrong side of bed.

Martha Lee
(c) Bertron

The atmosphere of the breakfast table may affect the whole day and it is of real importance to at least give the opportunity of a well served, leisurely breakfast to the members of the family.

The first precaution to take is to get people out of bed in plenty of time—easier said than done! The second is to have breakfast ready when they come to the dining room and the third is to have food prepared and served in an appealing manner.

A customary breakfast includes fruit, cereal, bread in some form, and a drink. To this may be added eggs or meat, depending upon the need or desire for a substantial meal. In the family without a maid, fruit, with the exception of orange juice and bananas, can be prepared the night before. Orange juice must be freshly squeezed to retain its best flavor.

Bananas will darken if peeled and exposed to the air. Stewed fruit is even improved by standing in its own juice. Grapefruit is delicious when cut, sections separated, honey poured on it and placed in the refrigerator over night. Berries can be looked over, hulled if necessary and chilled.

Ready to eat cereals are particularly convenient to have on hand. They permit catering to varied preferences and cause no additional work. Corn, rice and wheat cereals are on the market ready for use.

The most popular breakfast drinks for adults are coffee and tea. The children usually have milk. A caffeine free coffee can be bought if non-stimulating hot drink is desired.

The following breakfast menus are well-balanced and suggest a variety of fruits and cereals.

Stewed Prunes or Apricots.
Cornflakes. Milk or Cream.
Bacon.
Bran Muffins. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Grapefruit Sweetened with Honey.
Shredded Whole Wheat Biscuits.
Milk or Cream.
Toast. Scrambled Eggs. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Canned Peaches.
Bran Flakes. Milk or Cream.
Broiled Ham.
Hot Rolls. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Oranges.
Rice Cereal. Milk or Cream.
Toast. Poached Eggs on Toast. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Stewed Figs.
Cornflakes. Milk or Cream.
Toast. Boiled Eggs. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.
Berries.
Wheat Cereal. Milk or Cream.
Rolls. Codfish Cakes. Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Oranges and Prunes.
Bran Waffles with Bacon.
Coffee (or caffeine free coffee) or Milk.

Faithfully yours,

Westward—Ho!

DRAWN BY
Nell Brinkley

WOULDN'T it be a sodden soul that didn't feel some of the same uplifting thrill that shook the first young man who "went West" upon its setting out for the Golden West again after an absence of ten years? And all the time one has been hearing about it like an exile getting rumors from home. But thinks I—whose Easternbred husband can never believe I was NOT a two-gun cow-girl just because I came out of the West—thinks I—even if the last of the "Westerners" has been said to have been already made in motion-pictures and the Indian has become a showman with the white man as producer, nothing can change the fact that a different, a farther, a brighter, a bluer, a more magical SKY canopies the West than any the EAST has to show except in October.

The nice long tickets are bought; for an extraordinary grandmother, the only baby that ever was yet or will be, a husband "beyond compare" unless there be another such on another star, and the lady-artist, who's going Home to take a look at its immensity, which will either inspire or overpower her humble but earnest talents.

Au revoir—but not good-bye, of course.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

ONE NO TRUMP DEVELOPED TO GAME CONTRACT.

Auction and Contract Bidding.

SOUTH bids one No Trump showing at least four probable tricks including at least two quick tricks distributed in three suits. North, holding as good as a defensive Heart bid and a singleton Spade, takes out the No Trump by a bid of two Hearts, which becomes the contract at Auction Bridge. At Contract Bridge South would then bid four Hearts for game.

The play: East leads the Club Queen. North (declarer) pauses to consider the two hands. His straightaway tricks are probably four Heart tricks, two Club tricks and one Spade trick, or seven in all, with no further possibilities other than ruffs. In this situation the only way he can go game is to employ the trumps in the two hands separately, or in other words, play the two hands at cross-ruff. With this object in view he lets the first trick run to the Club King, leaving the Club Ace in Dummy for a re-entry and starts ruffing Spades and Clubs alternately, and in this way makes his contract.

Another hand will be discussed on Monday.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning auction Bridge problems. Write to him, care of this paper, inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

A man was arrested for stealing another man's ax. The judge asked him why he took it and how far he had carried it. The man answered, "I took it for a joke and I carried it three miles." The judge answered: "Thirty days, you carried a joke too far."

A Wife's Meditations

By HELEN ROWLAND

NEXT to chewing gum, there is nothing that sticks to a woman quite so persistently as the memory of having made a fool of herself.

Greater love hath no woman than this: That she feed a man all the things he LIKES, knowing perfectly well that the dyspepsia which follows shall be visited upon her head.

The real test of a man's love is not his willingness to give up the things that are bad for him, like cocktails and late hours, to please you—but his willingness to give up the things that he thinks are GOOD for him, like spring onions, soft collars and golf.

—In clothes, in manners and even in diseases. But in nothing have they changed so radically in the last decade as in the art of love-making. Indeed, it is so modernistic that you'd hardly know it was the same old emotion.

It is easier for the average man to love a pretty woman than to love a beautiful one, just as it is easier for him to appreciate an attractive parlor ornament than a work of art.

At this dangerous time of year, a man is almost afraid to pretend that he's in love, for fear he may take himself seriously.

Bisch on Erysipelas

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

ERYSIPELAS is a very acute and contagious disease.

In adults it is rarely fatal, but in the very young and the very old the overwhelming nature of its toxins or poisons may lead to death.

The type of erysipelas most commonly met with is the form that attacks the face and head.

It is first noticed as a rule as a slightly reddish spot, although with it there may be a chill and fever.

The reddish spot is often over the bridge of the nose or on the cheeks.

As the disease advances the skin becomes swollen, tense and smooth. When the affected area is touched it feels fiery hot.

Sometimes the condition is so severe that the eyes are closed from the swelling and water blisters may appear. It may happen that the face is swollen to unusual proportions, so much so that the patient is scarcely recognizable.

Erysipelas manifests itself from three to seven days after exposure. It lasts about five days as a rule.

When the temperature goes down it does so all of a sudden, by what is known as "crisis."

The organism which causes erysipelas has a long name, "streptococcus erysipelatos."

Erysipelas may spread from one person to another and assume the proportions of an epidemic. It seems to be particularly prevalent in the spring of the year, just why, nobody knows.

It used to be very common in old and badly ventilated buildings with defective sanitation. It often has been a serious problem in hospitals and other institutions which were not up-to-date.

People with wounds from surgical operations or accident seem to be particularly susceptible to erysipelas.

In erysipelas, strict and complete isolation of the patient must be carried out.

Although erysipelas may cure itself, as it were, without any special medical remedies, it is unwise not to call in the services of a physician in all cases.

It may be complicated by kidney disease or pneumonia. A general blood poisoning may result. Somekings of the heart may follow in its wake.

Erysipelas, from its appearance, is a most alarming-looking condition.

The chief thing to worry about, however, is that it may spread to as few as possible and best, of course, to none at all.

Elinor Glyn Says:

By ELINOR GLYN

THERE was an old Western expression, "paying your shot." It meant, applied to social things, that if you ate the salt of friends, or accepted any entertainment from them—you were obligated to "pay your shot"—give some return.

But there are natures which will accept invitations and "eat the salt" without ever thinking that they need put themselves out in the least to be agreeable to other guests, or aid the hostess to make the party go, or in fact use the slightest effort.

You will see some girls sitting like dumbbells and damping a whole group, because they "don't feel like it." Well, let them stay at home, then, and incur no obligation. You have to pay for your ticket even in going to a movie, so why not remember that, when you go into society?

All those niceties of politeness used to be considered as part of good breeding—girls were taught fine manners when they were so young that they became second nature afterwards—but now, when everyone just "grows" like Topsy—unless Joan and Margaret have kind hearts and unselfish natures, they only do what pleases them, regardless of the rest of the company.

How wonderful it would be in this great America if good manners and good breeding could advance as fast as monetary independence and physical culture do.

And it all lies in the hands of the girls—the mothers of the future race.

One cocktail makes a man want to talk to you; two makes him want to confide in you; three makes him want to kiss everybody!

A plain man who knows how to look into a woman's eyes is infinitely more dangerous than an Adonis who merely looks THROUGH her at his own reflection.

The modern love affair must have been invented by the same man who invented revolving doors. You're out of it almost before you are aware that you are in it.

CHAPTER 23

"Oh—Yeh? Well, Mr. Warriner has it. He offers you everything—a trade for the one thing he wants—you, an' you means happiness to him—at least he thinks so—now. He offers you all that. Is that selfishness? I'm a woman yes. Well, I'm selfish, too, in a way. I never threw Eddie at you before—before I saw that I'd never be happy again if I got him an' you didn't."

"Oh—you're tryin' to sell yourself to me as lookin' out for yourself, first?"

"Maybe. I wanted Eddie bad enough when he wanted me. What use is he to me if he don't want me? As much use as you'd be to Warrv—an' you don't want him. He more sorry since it's my own sister who's mild about him, an' him just as dippy over her. Can you see the picture from where you sit or would the lady like a seat closer to the screen—just as soon as a feature is over there'll be plenty o' seats, miss —"

"Oh, quit clownin' about such things——"

"Why? It appeals to my sense of humor. You'd be better off if you had one in your system. Laugh! Laugh it off —come on, kid—let's laugh."

She put her arm around Queenie.

Hank starts with a hoarse, stagey laugh. It dimmed down to a shrill series of gulps. Her body shook and she began to sob. Queenie, in her arms, tightening her embrace, was sobbing, too.

They stood that way for what seemed a long time.

The shrill ring of the telephone startled them. Hank tore herself out of the scene and answered.

"It's for you, Queenie," she whispered, putting the receiver down on the table.

Queenie picked it up and said "Hello." Hank could not hear what was being said to her, but she heard plainly what Queenie was saying—to Eddie —for she knew that voice, the voice that resounded in her own soul day and night. Queenie was saying—

"At 11 o'clock. I told you . . . no, we were right in the middle of it when you butted in . . . go to sleep. What? Well, do you think I'll be wafted off on a cloud an' sung bye-bye with the music of angels? Say—you ain't the only one what's sufferin'—there are others what took a clip on the chin, too . . . good night!"

The important town car drew up before the Princeton Hotel five minutes before noon.

Promptly at 12, there stepped forth a pretty young woman whose initials the door carried. Jeffrey's, the driver, bowed and opened the door. But Queenie Mahoney did not enter. Instead, she handed him a letter and a parcel.

"Take these to Mr. Warriner, please," she said.

Queenie turned and went back into the hotel, up in the elevator and to the little suite where she had lived with her sister, Hank.

Seated in the living room were Hank and Eddie Kerns. Both were smiling as Queenie re-entered. Eddie had been there for an hour. He jumped up and started to embrace Queenie, but a warning glance shifting to Hank restrained him.

"Aw, go head," chirped Hank, "I'll turn my back."

Eddie folded the girl into his arms. Hank found business in the bedroom.

"Ain't she a bear!" cried Queenie.

"Greatest in the world—next to you."

"Next to nobody. I ain't fit to clean her shoes. All I got is my good-lookin' pan and a passable shape. Outside o' that anybody that'd give me a rumble over Hank ought to have his head examined."

"Quit rappin' yourself," protested Eddie. "Weren't you as fine about all this as even Hank? An' you know what I think o' her. Weren't you ready to let me go—for her sake? Weren't you willin' to marry Warriner, so I'd think you cared for him an' let Hank know it was her I loved? Say—when you scale it all down, after all, an' set in Warry even beggin' you to marry him, I'm the only one in the whole deal who was selfish, an' I come out winner."

"Oh—you're the 'only one what comes out ahead o' the game? How about me?"

"I'm no bargain, Queenie. For me you turned down millions. The junk you jus' sent back to Warry—an' that car—that alone is a fortune. An' that ain't a flyspeck on what was waitin' for you. You tossed off all that, an' all that it meant, besides, for—for what? For a hoofer!"

"Don't be like that. Who's a hoofer? You're a composer. Look at Irving Berlin? Would you call him a singin' waiter because he used to be one? Look at Paul Whiteman. Is he a taxi-driver because he once was? Look at Harry Lauder. Is he a coal miner—or is Will Rogers a cowhand? You're a genius, Eddie. You'll be up in the big dough, yourself . . . you'd better be, too, 'cause in the last few days I picked up some kind o' expensive habits an' ideas."

Hank bobbed her head in and said:

"What are you goin' to buy with your first million, Eddie?"

"What's who goin' to buy with his first million?" retorted Queenie. You mean what am I going to buy with his first million. I'll tell you—something' he owes me—one o' the things he cost me—a yacht. Gee, I'm hot for a yacht."

"That's a good song title," exclaimed Eddie. "I'll set goes down in the li'l red book—I'm Hot for a Yacht'—lemme get at that piano an' I'll knock it out right now——"

"I'm hot for a yacht—uhu—that's a pushover. You offer me an aeroplane to soar up in the sky. You offer me a roadster with a rumble seat—what rhymes with sky? Lemme see —eye, by, try, die, fly, guy, high, we might put five sighs, me, why—I don't make sense. I'll change it ——"

"You offer me a touring car that I can drive in high, you offer me an aeroplane to soar up in the sky, but I don't want to ride the roads or travel in the air, for all my raves are for the waves and if you really care—you'll listen to my plea, I beg on bended knee—Chorus:

To Be Concluded Tomorrow.

Next Monday a powerful two-week's serial, "The Idiot of the City" begins in the American. A beautiful girl heats a gang leader.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

EDDIE KERNS, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue, to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney. She and her younger sister, Queenie, are playing in vaudeville. Eddie tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. Eddie discovers he has lost his heart to Queenie. He keeps his secret from "Hank."

"Warry" attempts to get Queenie to go out with him. Eddie tries to persuade Queenie to have nothing to do with "Warry." He is holding her in his arms when "Hank" comes in. She asks if they have been fighting, and Queenie then leaves the room. Queenie shows "Hank" a diamond bracelet "Warry" had given to her. The revue wins the approval of the first-nighters. Eddie sends a note to Queenie to meet him alone. Hank breaks with Eddie and he seeks Queenie.

(Now Go on With the Story)

'The Lady Killer,' by Robert Terry Shannon, an Intriguing Novel Complete in Six Days

Well, I'll tell you something I've been having a little detective work done on you. One of the maids in the hotel has been in the next room a good many evenings with her ear glued to the keyhole. Why don't you laugh that off?"

All color fled from Arline Forrest's face; she was perfectly white.

"A thing like that couldn't be true!" she said looking straight at Peter.

"He knows it's a lie," Peter told her, so shaken with anger that his voice, strangely, had the sound of untruthfulness.

"I'll phone upstairs to the Dillon woman's rooms," Kelly said to Arline. "I can't guarantee that she'll come down and disdress this with us in any pleasant fashion, but I'm pretty sure we can get her to talk."

"No!" Peter's throat, tongue and mouth were so dry that he could hardly utter the word. "I'll tell you everything—I'll make a clean breast of it!"

"Yes!" Arline's voice contradicted him with a click.

"What's the matter, Blair—weakening!"

"Peter isn't afraid to face her in front of me," Arline said. "Please go ahead, Mr. Kelly, and get hold of her."

"Of course I'm not afraid to face her," Peter said. "I just wanted to save you any embarrassment, Arline. But if you really want to talk to Miss Dillon let's go ahead and do it."

Peter arose, and Arline grasped his arm as though to steady him.

"Come on with me, both of you."

He led them across the lobby to the telephone. Almost immediately he was able to get Madelon Dillon.

"Miss Dillon," he said, "I have a young lady and a man here who want to speak to you very much—about a personal matter. May I bring them up to your suite?"

"Peter! Where are you?" she demanded with sharp astonishment.

"I'm down in the lobby."

"The lobby! How on earth—" Her tone changed to startled authority. "I'll be right down and get you!"

In a few moments the elevator opened and Madelon Dillon stepped out. At the sight of Peter her face lit up with a disapproving excitement and she went straight to him as though she did not see Arline or George Kelly.

"Miss Dillon, I—"

Peter's attempt to speak to her was cut short at once.

"I think you must have gone crazy," she said with a sort of tender anger. "I had no idea you'd get out of bed when I left you alone. It's lucky I am here. There's no telling what would happen to you—I'm going to take you right back upstairs and put you to bed. No more of this foolishness, Peter! Come along."

"Please, Miss Dillon, wait a minute. I'm quite all right. I want you to talk to these people. This is Miss Forrest and Mr. Kelly."

"I don't give a damn who they are," Madelon declared vigorously. "I'm going to take you upstairs to bed, where you belong."

"Just a minute, Miss Dillon—please. You don't understand. This man has been lying about me and I want you to tell Miss Forrest the truth."

Madelon shot a searching glance at Arline.

"Well, if it isn't the little lady from the hospital. Miss Forrest, eh? Say—you're the one that walked out on him, there, the day I got in town, aren't you?"

"I think you called the same day I did," Arline said with frigid politeness.

"Yes, I remember you now," Madelon told her. "Peter was pretty well sold on you at the time, but I thought he was all over that."

She turned and eyed Big George Kelly.

"We got a stake in his game, Miss Dillon, or I wouldn't be here," Kelly said. "I want to marry this girl."

"That's all right with me," Madelon told him with a hard humor.

"You don't understand," Peter said to her desperately. "This fellow thinks he can get Miss Forrest by ruining my character to her. He says he's going to show me up, and he expects you to help him do it."

"You're all crazy," Madelon stated. "I can't blame this poor boy because he's just up from a sick bed, but you two healthy saps ought to be ashamed of yourselves for getting him all worked up like this."

"Please let us all go up to your apartment," Peter implored. "We'll attract attention her, and I want to explain."

"Oh you do, do you? You want to explain something to this girl that threw you down when you didn't have a friend in the world, do you?"

"She didn't," Peter disclaimed heatedly.

A slow light of satisfaction was in George Kelly's eyes.

They filed into the elevator, and because of the operator's presence no one spoke further; when they were in Madelon's parlor, her first concern was to establish Peter in a deep-cushioned chair.

There was a divan, and Kelly had dropped on to it beside Arline.

"As I told you," said Kelly, "my interest is in this little girl here. We were engaged, and this friend of yours here came along and started pulling a lot of hot stuff that went to Arline's head. Now I don't want to be unpleasant, but I know who you are, Miss Dillon —I know all about you—Sam Hoffman and all.

"This girl thinks Blair is on the level with her. I happen to know he isn't. I told Miss Forrest you were supporting him; she wouldn't believe me, so I thought I ought to bring her here and let her see for herself."

Madelon looked at him with an unfathomable expression in her deep eyes.

"What made you think I'd be interested in that kind of junk?" she asked levelly.

"I'll be perfectly frank about that, too," Kelley returned. "I thought you might be interested to know that he's not only double crossing her, he's double-crossing you. All the time you have been looking out for him he's been going after this girl. Why, after you left his room tonight he got up and dressed and sneaked downstairs to see her."

Madelon turned to Arline.

"And what's your angle on it, dearie?" she inquired sarcastically. "What do you want—a written guarantee of Peter's purity?"

"All I want is the truth, and I'm quite willing to accept Peter's word for it," Arline stated. "I simply can't believe he's practically a pauper that has to earn a stingy living as a chauffeur."

"So you thought he was a money guy!" Madelon laughed "Say, I have lent him a little money—but he's arranged to pay it back. He's poor—but honest."

"Not only that," Arline resumed, her voice a bit strained, "I don't believe for a minute that he cares a thing in the world about you. I don't believe he could care for a woman of your type."

"You don't, eh?" Madelon Dillon smiled coldly. "Why you poor little fluff! Do you think I'd let you give Peter a run around and then, when you get good and ready, grab him off? He wouldn't be interested in me, eh? Listen. If you're so sure Peter is absolutely truthful, maybe you can persuade him to tell you about that little key-hole scene his big snoot here got wise to. I couldn't affect him, eh . . . go ahead, Peter, tell her the truth."

"Yes, let's have the whole story," Kelly chimed in.

"I want to hear every word of it, Peter," Arline said.

"We don't have to go into things like that," Peter protested. "All I wanted," he objected, "was to convince Arline that Kelly lied when he said there was anything wrong between you and me."

"Anything wrong?" Madelon's eyebrows lifted slightly. "Why certainly there's nothing wrong, Peter dear." She looked straight at Arline. "Peter and I were just telling how fond we were of each other. I care a great deal for him, and he told me that he cared as much for me as for anyone else in the world. There's nothing so very strange in that, is there?"

"Why—I can't believe it—" Arline's voice faltered.

"You don't mean to tell me that Peter has been making love to you downstairs, do you?" Madelon asked Arline with mock surprise. Then, suddenly, she smiled.

"I'm afraid you don't understand Peter, Miss Forrest. The boy has a sort of roving eye and he's likely, at time, to say more than he really means. I wouldn't feel too badly, though—it'll all come out in the wash."

Peter's face was dyed with a shamed color.

"When I was talking to Miss Dillon this evening I didn't know that you had broken your engagement," he said to Arline, in a harassed voice. "I didn't mean to—"

"Didn't mean what you told me?" Madelon demanded in a voice that cut like a lash of a whip.

"I meant it—yes, but not in the way it might have sounded," Peter explained lamely.

"In other words, you go after what's closest at hand," Kelly taunted him. "I'll say you don't overlook any bets!"

Again the claws of Madelon Dillon became visible.

"Just a minute, please," she said to Arline. "Maybe I'm the one that's been double-crossed. As long as we are all putting our cards on the table I wish you to tell me just exactly what Peter means to you."

"I—I don't know . . ." Arline said faintly.

"Yes—you know," Madelon insisted firmly. "Don't try to stall me. Was he downstairs making love to you—just after he made love to me?"

"Miss Dillon, I—I want to know the truth. If you and Peter have really—have really——"

Through half-closed lids Madelon Dillon's glance drifted to Peter's strained face for a moment.

"My dear young woman," she said with cutting tolerance, "I think you had better run along home. Peter and I are people of the modern world, and you are just a little small-town girl who doesn't know what it's all about. What do you think Peter is—a saint? Don't make me laugh!"

Madelon's declaration — it was practically a confession—brought a swift chuckle from Big George Kelly.

"Well, when a woman admits a thing like that, Arline, I guess there's no longer room for doubt," he said triumphantly.

Arline's face, white and stricken, began to work as though she were about to break into tears, but she managed to control herself; reluctantly she got to her feet.

"I'm sorry, Peter," she said in a hollow voice. "I believed in you. . . ."

Peter Blair had the physical sensation that his heart had actually died . . . that it was an inert, lifeless lump that no longer functioned in his chest.

"I think you ought to give me a chance to explain all this," he said in a tone empty of all strength.

"There's nothing to explain, Peter dear," Madelon said suavely. "You've been playing with the little girl and you've been caught with the goods. But it's all right with me—I understand me, and I understand you. I suppose you'll be doing this sort of thing as long as you live. Well, it's lucky that I don't take our affair too seriously, although I'll admit you sure had me going tonight . . . over there in your own bedroom."

Peter ignored her.

"Won't you please let me explain, Arline?" he begged.

"I think Miss Dillon has explained it better than you ever could," Kelly told him, interrupting any reply from Arline. "Her admissions seem to cover the ground pretty thoroughly."

"And I had so much faith in you, Peter . . . tonight," Arline half sobbed.

"Can't you have faith in me for just a little while longer?" he pleaded. "Oh, I know how all this must sound to you, but it's nothing but circumstantial evidence. I swear to you I've been on the level with you, Arline. There's been nothing between me and Miss Dillon, and she knows it."

"I didn't say there had been anything wrong," Madelon corrected him coolly.

"No, but you insinuated it in such a way that it was worse than if you had come right out and told a deliberate lie," Peter returned. "Why under the sun you wanted to do a thing like that I can't tell. If I have to lose Arline that's something I can't help, I suppose, but it's brutal to have her think that I was deliberately deceiving her—that I was just common, low-down double-crosser—"

"Come on, Arline," George Kelly said quietly, taking her arm.

Peter, trembling in every nerve, got to his feet; his legs were weak now, and he felt as though he could scarcely stand on them.

"You've got to have faith in me, Arline," he urged her though she were about to break, believe in me, no matter how bad things look against me.

"If you care a thing on earth about me you can show it by sticking to me through thick and thin—by believing what I tell you, no matter if a hundred people tell you the opposite. Don't you believe me, Arline—haven't you got faith enough in me to know that I'm telling you the truth?"

Her eyes were too dry for tears, and when she spoke it was with a mechanical coldness that chilled him clear through.

"I may have faith in your good intentions, Peter," she said, but there's something about you that makes me too uncertain. Even if I didn't believe the worst about you, there's still plenty left—enough to warn me not to make a mistake. After all . . . a girl's got to look out for herself. . . .

"I've been as true to you as I could under the circumstances," Peter pleaded.

"As true as you could be when you were living with another woman," Big George Kelly sneered.

Peter turned helplessly to Madelon Dillon.

"Won't you tell them both, once and for all, that we haven't been living together?"

"Oh, Peter, you make me awfully weary," Madelon yawned. "Why all this excitement about a girl that doesn't give two cents about you anyway, and never did? Personally, she acts to me like she's afflicted with the instincts of a gold-digger and the heart of a rabbit."

Arline seemed to wince.

"I'm going, Peter," she said. "What's the good of all this arguing?"

"You won't listen to me—you won't believe a word I say," Peter cried desperately. "Arline, for God's sake, don't turn against me this way. Can't you see it's all a frame-up?"

"I can't stand all this arguing—I really can't," she said. "And I'm going."

Peter had the tearing sensation as of a dull, rusty knife twisting in his heart—a vast, unfathomable loneliness—that left him trembling and smashed in the soul.

Some flame, burning low in his breast, flickered out and was extinguished forever. . . .

HOPE CALUMET & HECLA WILL REMAIN IN BOSTON

By FRANK H. McLOON
Financial Editor

News that Calumet & Hecla is to consider a proposal to remove its head office from Boston to New York seems like genuine shock to the financial district. This company has for many years been intimately associated with Boston, and a hope was everywhere expressed that the proposal would be defeated. The original Associates from Harvard who made the great discovery of metal is represented in Calumet & Hecla by Chairman R. L. Agassiz, succeeded a few months ago as president by James MacNaughton, who had been the mine's $120,000-a-year manager.

Andrew Carnegie was good in his line, but he was by no means an infallible seer into the financial future. A Wall Street writer says: "When United States Steel was purchased from the late Andrew Carnegie, the latter remarked the common was all water, and the preferred worth little. He accepted bonds in payment for his plants because he believed they would be returned to him eventually through bankruptcy proceedings. This didn't worry the late Mr. Morgan in the least. Now United States Steel is paying off its bonds at $115, the preferred is selling about $140, and the common which was 'all water' is selling around $185 the equivalent of about $260 a share for the stock. It is worth much more than the securities that 'had some value' at time of organization."

No answer has yet been forthcoming as requested, announced some time ago by the American Automobile Assn. as to what becomes of the automobile money? It was pointed out that, under the war excise tax motorists paid into the treasury $1,900,000 a week, while the federal government has expended about $960,000,000 under federal aid highway act, leaving a balance of nearly $500,000,000 due to car owners of the nation.

Prosperity Not Foolproof; Morgan's Vs. Mitchell's Act

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, April 26 is familiarity with prosperity in danger of breeding contempt for it?

Recent events almost suggest "Yes."

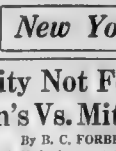
The great banker America ever produced was the late J. P. Morgan. The greatest praise ever received by him was when he stepped forward dramatically and, by his personal check, put an end to the panic of 1907.



B. C. Forbes

Morgan's action was hailed as the financial savior of his country.

When a money panic threatened last month and the New York Stock Exchange, Charles E. Mitchell, head of the largest financial institution in the country, stepped forward single-handedly and, like Mr. Morgan, announced that he was making immediately $25,000,000 available to clamorous borrowers. This act was an almost exact duplication of the original Morgan act. It differed mainly in that Mr. Morgan had the very practical co-operation of other bankers when he made his offer, whereas Mr. Mitchell, sensing the urgency of the situation, acted on his own initiative.

Both bankers doubtless averted an upheaval the consequences of which could not be foretold. Yet, whereas Mr. Morgan was universally applauded, Mr. Mitchell found himself the object of not a little criticism at the hands of even those most benefited by his courageous act, namely, the members of the Federal Reserve Board, who unquestionably would have had to bear the brunt of unfavorable publicity dignation had disaster been precipitated. There were very demands that Mr. Mitchell be summarily ousted from the directorate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

In the old days periods of national prosperity were gratefully appreciated. The country was subjected to so many ups and downs, to so many periods of depression and widespread unemployment, that good times caused rejoicing. It was because Mr. Morgan's action was instrumental in saving the country from wholesale disaster that he was enthusiastically held up as a national hero.

But during the war, following the war, and since the recovery after the 1920-21 collapse, our under lying the country has waxed so wealthy financial, industrial and general business activity has been so general and so unprecedented, that many have come to look upon prosperity as inevitable. As periods of no fool-proof

May not this changed state of America's mind explain in large measure why Morgan's disaster-averting action was joyously hailed and why Mitchell's similar action brought almost as much condemnation as commendation?

The sober truth is, of course, that no nation ever enjoys uninterrupted prosperity and that America is mighty unlikely to prove an unique exception. Very fortunately, our present widespread prosperity is extremely solidly-based. But let neither the Federal Reserve Board nor anybody else assume that it is absolutely invulnerable, absolutely fool-proof.

• • •

Now the late J. P. Morgan answered all questions concerning credit, collateral and character when being officially quizzed about his $25,000,000 loan to Messrs. Ryan and other matters, is intensely interesting at this time when we are trying to decide how much loans should be made and not made. Read this.

Samuel Untermyer: Is not credit based upon money?

J. P. Morgan: No, sir.

Mr. Untermyer: None whatever?

Mr. Morgan. No, sir. None whatever. I know lots of men who have borrow any amount, whose credit is unquestionable.

Mr. Untermyer: Is that not because it is believed that they have the money back of them?

Mr. Morgan. No, sir, it is because I believe in the man.

Mr. Untermyer: And he might not be worth anything else?

Mr. Morgan: He might not have anything. I have known a man to come into my office and I have given him a check for a million dollars when I knew he had not a cent.

Mr. Untermyer: There are a good many of them?

Mr. Morgan. Yes, a good many in my former business, commercial credits are based on possession of money or property?

Mr. Untermyer: Money or property or character

Mr. Untermyer: Is not commercial credit based primarily upon money or property?

Mr. Morgan. No, sir; character.

Mr. Untermyer: Before money or property?

Mr. Morgan: Before money or anything else. You cannot buy it.

GERMAN MARK AT NEW LOW

New York, April 26 (INS)—Heavy selling of the German mark broke out in the foreign exchange market today and forced questions for the currency to 23.65¾ cents to the mark, the lowest since May 1927.

The selling of the marks here was preceded by a large volume of transfers of marks into dollars in Berlin, where the dollar was quoted at a high of 4.2172 marks to the dollar.

Foreign exchange dealers reported insistent selling of marks with little or no demand. The normal value of the mark is 23.80 cents, so that today's rates show a loss of 1¼ points.

LOWER COTTON PRICES SET

New York, April 26 (AP)—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 7 to 13 points under the renewal of yesterday's selling movement, which was encouraged by further declines in Liverpool, a favorable weather map and favorable crop advices from the Southwest.

Selling was active. The decline soon extended to 18.77 for July and 18.89 for December, or about 13 to 15 points net lower.

Trade interests absorbed offerings of May on the price advance to 19.50. There also was considerable covering or profit-taking by recent sellers. Later offerings and the market steadied up a few points from the lowest by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported heavy general liquidation on favorable crop advices from the Southwest, and that the goods market in Manchester had been disturbed by the break in cotton.

Wickwire Spencer Report Made Public

Report of receivers of Wickwire Spencer Steel Co. for 1928 shows profit of $2,150,206 after expenses, franchise, taxes, bond interest and other deductions against $1,155,469 in 1927

After charging out depreciation, legal and other professional services, bond interest on $7,000,000 deferred liability for purchase and rental for Goddard Works, interest and charges on receivers' certificates, bonds and certain other interest charges authorized by court to be paid, there remains $297,734. This figure is not comparable with net loss of $1,022,564 shown in 1927, since in 1928 only certain interest charges authorized by court were paid while in former year interest payments were considerably larger. A comparison is available for final 1928 net of $1,297,734.

NEW HIGH ON NEW HAVEN IS RECORDED

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, April 26—New Haven Railroad common sold at a new high for 1929 today, in heavy Stock Exchange dealings, anticipating a good report to be issued tomorrow. It's 2¾ at 252¼.

Investment buying of New Haven, Pennsylvania and other high grade dividend-paying railroad stocks forced prices higher. Pennsylvania was well bought above 52.

After the early irregularity had been removed, Allied Chem. Blaise Steel and American Can were ready to lead another moderate rally. Gains ranging through to 1 42½ for a 3-point gain

BOSTON OIL ADVANCE.

A 15-cent rise in Ohio crude oil following yesterday's boost in Texas crude, brought in some speculative buying of the oil stocks. Cities Service was the most advanced tank car price of gasoline at Boston and adjacent points ¼ cent a gallon to 19½ cents.

Advance Rumely was up 1¾ at 94¾.

Money was none too plentiful but the rate for call loans ¼was posted at 5 per cent. Against yesterday's 12 per cent rate, comparatively little money was steady with nary prior price changes.

The pools resumed their work in Columbia Graphophone. International Tel & Tel, Curtiss Aero, and investment buying of the railroad stocks was again in evidence.

The $87,000,000 increase in brokers' loans was in line with expectations in Wall Street. The bulls looked on the bright side and attributed higher borrowings as a proof of growing confidence in stocks and the stock market in general.

MARK AT NEW LOW.

The German mark broke to a new low at about the close, but the complete success of an offering of $30,000,000 8½ per cent convertible debenture bonds of the I. G. Chemical Corporation was announced.

Columbia Graphophone occupied most of the attention of the professionals as the stock continued to soar to new high price levels Radio closed 80¾ unchanged for a gain of 5 points. International Tel & Tel jumped 8 points to 262¾ and Briggs Manufacturing gained about 2 points at 46.

Bethlehem Steel weakened on announcement of the new stock offering at $85 a share, but the $4.05 a share earned in the first quarter of 1929 was a strong recommendation for the common stock, from the investors' standpoint.

New York Curb Has Prices Mostly Up

Prices were mostly higher today on the New York Curb. Associated Electric, Ltd., was off 1¼ at 34¾, on a block of 12,000 shares. Curtiss Flying Service advanced ¾ to 27¾ and Electric Bond & Share gained ¾ to 81 Ford, Ltd., declined ¾ to 18¾.

Financing for United Power, Gas & Water Corp. will be undertaken through Blair & Co., consist of 43,000 shares of $3 cumulative preferred with common stock privileges, and 100,000 shares of common. On completion of present financing, United Power, Gas & Water Corp will own not less than 70 per cent of outstanding Class B stock of Federal Water Service Corp. and all outstanding Class B stock of Peoples Light & Power Corp United will thus hold controlling financing interests in both these utilities.

Brokers' Loans Are Close to Old High

Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers in reporting member firms of the Federal Reserve in New York city during week ended April 24 increased $87,000,000 to $4,972,000,000. This compares with $5,425,000,000 on April 17 and $4,-144,000,000 on April 25, 1928. High was set March 20, 1929, $5,783,-000,000

Bulls Regard Credit Pinch as Mere Growing Pains

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 26.—Wall Street's revival of qualified optimism is based on a conviction that the credit pinches were really growing pains, rather than forebodings of disaster.

In the phrase of one of the most influential members of the New York Stock Exchange, the patient never was as sick as had commonly been supposed. This broker was impressed with the apparent steadiness of the speculative price structure since the middle of March, despite the organized bearish talk from official quarters. To his way of thinking, unless the market had rested on sound foundations, it would have been wrecked by the scare bulletins which had been circulated.

Wall Street is mercurial, and superficial sentiment fluctuates with the stock ticker. The prudent adviser will avoid swinging rapidly to either extreme. Until further substantial reduction of brokers' loans has been effected, amateurs should hesitate to go heavily into debt to acquire securities.

The really effective brakes on the runaway bull market were placed by brokers themselves in boosting marginal requirements quickly over a period of weeks. Average marginal requirements are approximately double the normal levels, and the policy automatically tends to prevent excessive speculation by shoestring operators.

I asked a spokesman for the Stock Exchange whether the big board itself had initiated the new standards in respect to margins. He explained that the enlarging of marginal requirements resulted partly from the insistence of money lenders on greater leeway in loans to brokers. Brokers accordingly, in order to meet the demands of the banks, had to pass the buck to their customers. The exchange was in entire sympathy with the policy of raising margins, and through its system of questionnaires it called to the carpet brokers who were out of line. The exchange was especially insistent that those which themselves had big positions in the market, carried adequate margins on their own commitments, usually requiring, it is understood, about 30 per cent. This pressure on brokers heightened their tendency to require more cash from customers.

Since the middle of March, numerous conservative brokers have subordinated new business efforts to satisfying their new marginal standards. Many have willingly permitted recalcitrant operators to withdraw their accounts. This general quiet readjustment of conditions behind the cages in brokerage offices has had the effect of strengthening the technical position of the market.

Banks have been in recent weeks not only marked down the loan market of stocks, but have also tended to exclude securities which previously had been acceptable collateral. There has been of late reluctance to accept in loan envelopes low priced stocks, odd lots, unlisted stocks, and numerous Curb issues. This salary policy has resulted in some correction of the stock market situation, and has helped somewhat to reduce loans.

Efforts of brokers to get customers to put up more cash, though done largely for self-protection, fit in with the desires of the Federal Reserve Board members, who are not concerned with the level of stock prices but are interested in the volume of borrowed funds used to carry stocks.

A bond dealer in the Middle West writes in this column to inquire whether the country is reaching a frozen situation on call loans as a result of the slackening of speculative activity.

Though a quiet market somewhat reduced the liquidity of listed securities, the situation has by no means gone so far as to freeze up the loan market. As a matter of fact, brokers' loans continue to be attractive to banks, despite the present restrictive policy, because they are readily convertible into cash.

Their weakness lies in the fact that they are not under the terms of the Federal Reserve Act, eligible for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Bank, as commercial paper is. But under current business conditions corporations are less dependent than in the past on bank loans, and accordingly there has been in recent years a shrinking ratio of eligible paper among bank assets.

The real choice for surplus funds is between collateral loans, on the one hand, and investments, on the other. And one of the defects in the current financial situation is the poor marketability of bonds, with which member banks are heavily loaded. Many banks show paper losses on some of their bonds, and are accordingly reluctant to sell at present prices. Furthermore, with prevailing high interest rates on collateral loans, there is a restricted demand for bonds.

In its desire to get banks that are participants or lenders out of indebtedness to the Federal Reserve Banks, the authorities are indifferent as to whether the member banks liquidate through calling loans or through selling bonds.

Any substantial liquidation would tend to reduce interest rates, and such an adjustment would tend automatically to improve the market for outstanding bonds, and would thus ease the position of banks which are trying to stand on their own resources.

Munsingwear's Position—Air Reduction Improvement—Activity in Phillips-Jones—Briggs Earnings—Developments in Union Carbide—Tariff on Cement—Motors in Aviation—Expansion of Motor Wheel—A. I. C. Prospects.

Munsingwear's Position

MORE or less neglected by the general speculative community, Munsingwear stock has been backed accumulation by interests identified with its bankers. The position of the company is exceedingly attractive. For the 13 months ended February 31 last the net income amounted to $1,475,389, equivalent to $7.38 a share on the outstanding stock, which comprises only 200,000 shares without any funded debt or prior issues. This, compared with $5.95 a share, $600,000 in sales. It is understood that current earnings are at the rate of $10 a share. Munsingwear enjoys a remarkably strong current financial situation. Its total current assets at the close of 1928 were $3,103,853, while current liabilities were but $574,922, providing a quick ratio of 17 to 1. Cash alone amounted to $2,987,049, or more than five times the total current liabilities.

Air Reduction Income

Quarterly report of Air Reduction Co., it is understood, will show an improvement of more than 80 per cent over the same period last year.

Phillips-Jones Activity

Activity and strength in Phillips-Jones is a reflection, it is stated, of the more favorable conditions affecting the company, which have already begun to show in earnings. The net for the first quarter of 1929 is stated to be around $300,000 ahead of the corresponding period in 1928, while April is more than maintaining this improvement. Bookings are sufficient to assure large-scale operations for months to come, while expiration of the contract whereby other manufacturers were permitted to utilize Phillips-Jones products will benefit Phillips-Jones.

Briggs Report.

The coming quarterly statement of Briggs Manufacturing for the first three months of 1929 may show around 10 cents a share, according to expectation.

Carbide Development

Union Carbide & Carbon Corporation was organized as a subsidiary ten years ago by the Carbon & Carbide Chemicals Corporation for the purpose of developing unexplored fields of synthetic organic chemistry, and also to manufacture a line of chemical solvents. Among some of the products are "Ethylene glycol," "acetone," alcohols, "acetaldehyde," "pyrogen," pyrofax gas, stabilized gasoline, and "Prestone." Over five years was spent in development of prestone, a synthetic glycerine used as an anti-freeze mixture. Prestone is made by a secret process by which natural gas is treated with chlorine. In the course of two years Carbon & Carbide Chemicals Corp. now purchases more liquid chlorine than any other individual plant in the world. At present they use over 100 tons per day, and a production basis using 150 tons per day will be in force in the fall of the year. To fully appreciate the enormous proportions of operations, the heroine department is taking the entire output of chlorine from an adjoining plant which manufactures more chlorine than any other plant in the world.

Cement Tariff

Strength in the cement stocks is due to knowledge that virtual agreement has been reached in Washington for protective tariff on the product.

G. M. in Aviation

Notwithstanding repeated denials from officials of General Motors that they are in the aviation industry, it is considered only a question of perhaps a few months before the corporation enters the field on a large scale. Interest in developing in rapid strides and General Motors is aware that many of its automobile competitors, particularly Ford, have gone into airplane building in ambitious fashion. The G. M. management has never yet been accused of lackadaisical. Incidentally, the firm action of its stock the past few days inspired a report that three different issues which had been operating independently of each other have amalgamated their activities.

Motor Wheel Expansion

First quarter profits of Motor Wheel are estimated at above $1.50 a share and talk is heard that the company plans to acquire an additional property.

A. I. C. Prospects

Comparatively light buying appears sufficient to move American International Corporation stock upward from time to time. It was reported that two or three houses recently accumulating the stock, despite the assents of 600,000 shares now outstanding they found a limited floating supply. American International has not done much marketwise for several weeks, but its operations have been quite successful. Furnished with $25,000,000 new cash, the corporation was in fine position when the last wedge-break in the market occurred to acquire many stocks at what has since proved bargain levels.—J. G. B.

Newberry Vote May 10

Common stockholders of J. J. Newberry Co. will vote May 10 on proposal to increase authorized no par common stock to 800,000 shares from 400,000 shares.

BOSTON RETAIL SALES SHOW SPEEDING UP

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in New England: "Improved trade conditions during the latter part of this week speeded up retail sales, which had been much restricted and were causing a slowness in wholesale lines of all Spring merchandise.

Hardware is beginning to move, but the demand for machine tools is lessening.

Building contracts awarded in New England during the week ending April 18 amounted to $9,859,000, as compared with $13,019,000, for the corresponding week of 1928.

Contracts awarded in Massachusetts during March amounted to $18,757,000, which were 28 per cent below the total for March, 1928. For the first quarter the loss was about 20 per cent. The sale of lumber and building materials was restricted somewhat by the weather, but activity now has been resumed.

Hides are ten cents a pound lower than a year ago, and calfskins nine cents below those years prices. The market for hides and skins at present is weak, and purchasing is light. Increasing quantities of leather are being used for women's shoes, but less for men's though the demand call for men shoes favors the domestic tanner.

There is a little better call for the patent lines, though they have been suffering from competition with the reptile leathers.

Imitations, however, are now being successfully substituted. Labor troubles have restricted production somewhat of boots and shoes locally. The jobbers have been doing an active business and manufacturers are receiving a considerable volume of orders for delivery during the next few weeks. Women's popular lines are the most active. Tanning materials are in moderate demand.

Lower prices were accepted for domestic wools in a very spotty and slow market during the past week. Declines were distributed quite generally over the various grades, and sales were moderate in volume. Carpet wools were steady, but sales were light.

Receipts of wool in Boston this week were light. The improvement noted last week in the piece goods market has not been maintained. The sale of cotton goods in the local market has been light.

The cutting trades are rather quiet. Men's furnishings are slow. Jewelry sales are fairly active as it was last month and current sales of accessories and ties are moderate. Paints and wallpaper are slow. Rubber footwear and clothing at retail met with increased sales.

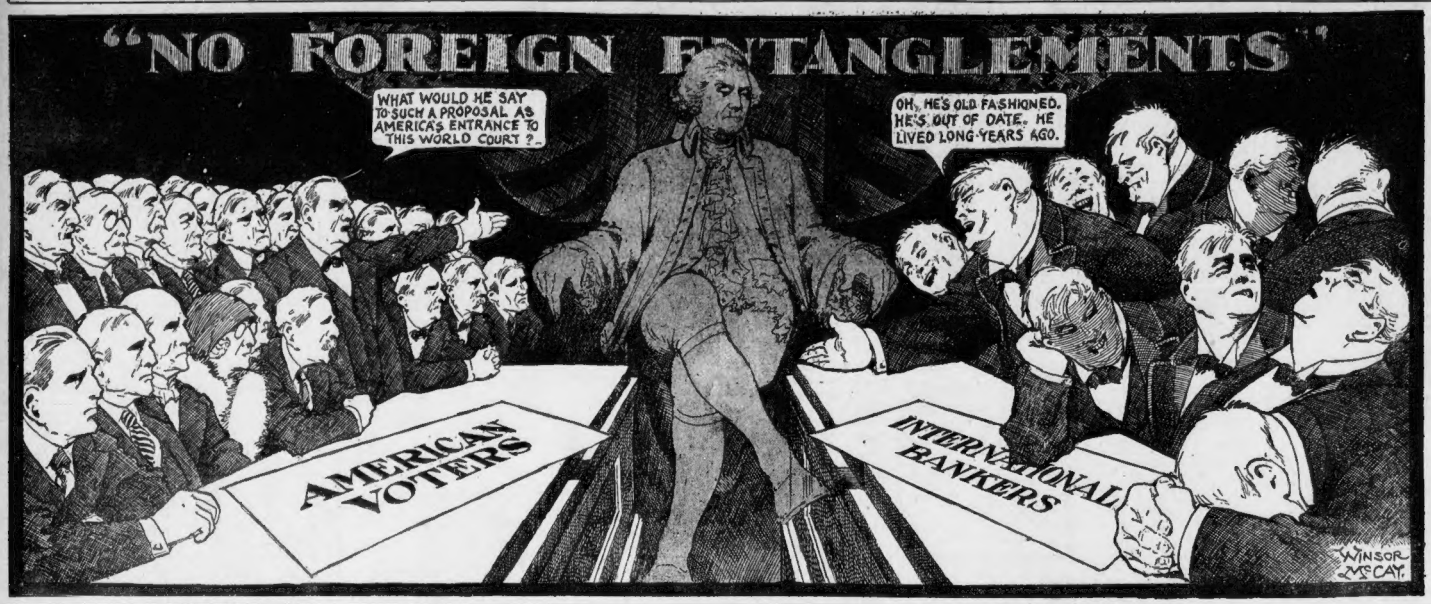
BOSTON SUNDAY EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

WHAT WOULD HE SAY?



"NO FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS"
WHAT WOULD HE SAY TO SUCH A PROPOSAL AS AMERICA'S ENTRANCE TO THIS WORLD COURT?
OH, HE'S OLD FASHIONED. HE'S OUT OF DATE. HE LIVED LONG YEARS AGO.
AMERICAN VOTERS
INTERNATIONAL BANKERS
WINSOR McCAY

Will Senate Dare Turn Deaf Ear to the American People To Heed Voices of Elihu Root and International Bankers?

Q.—Have the people ever had a chance to say whether they wanted the United States in the World Court?

A.—Yes, they had a chance in 1926, after the Senate in February of that year voted for us to enter the Court "with reservations."

Q.—What happened? A.—Most of the Republican Senators who had voted for the Court were defeated in the primaries or elections of that year.

Q.—What else? A.—Most of the Senators elected in their places based their campaigns on opposition to the World Court.

Q.—Anything else? A.—Yes, among the World Court Senators who were re-elected, several in their campaigns pledged themselves to the public not to vote for the Court again.

Q.—Well, it looks as if the people did their best to say they wanted to keep out of the Court? A.—It certainly does.

Q.—But hasn't Elihu Root just prepared a proposition for the United States to enter the World Court and isn't the Senate going to be asked to vote on it? A.—Yes, Mr. Root's plan for entrance abolishes the protection of our "reservations."

Q.—How could the Senate now dare defy the expressed opinion of the people and the established American policy of keeping out of foreign entanglements, and put us into the World Court? A.—Perhaps the Senate will listen to other voices than the voices of the American people.

Q.—For example? A.—The international bankers.

Q.—Who are these international bankers, anyway, and how do they make their money? A.—In peace times they make their big money in commissions on international financial transactions, which in the main means the lending of American money to Europe.

Q.—So they could not prosper if we stayed at home and minded our own business and invested our money in the United States? A.—No.

Q.—How do they make their money in war? A.—That's the big time. Then the international bankers get themselves appointed fiscal agents for foreign governments, and they get a rake-off on all foreign government bonds floated here and on all war material purchased in the United States for foreign governments.

Q.—So it is to their interest to get the United States into Court and League and make sure we shall not miss a chance to take part in all international quarrels and international loans and bankruptcy proceedings? A.—Certainly.

Q.—Then the business of international bankers seems to be to look after the interests of other countries rather than the interests of the United States? A.—That's why they are called international bankers.

Q.—You don't mean to say that international bankers have more influence with the Senate than the people of the United States have? A.—Possibly. We shall see.

Our Biggest Business

The Public Schools Must Command Brains and Character; Teachers Should Be Well Paid.

Big business and, in general, efficient business in this country has learned that there can be no substitute for character and brains in employes. They are irresistible. If a business commands them it succeeds.

The public schools are the biggest business in America. They are, in fact, the basic business. And for the work that they are called upon to do they must command brains and character.

The responsibility for making the schools give the service that we have a right to expect of them falls mainly on the teachers. We naturally want these teachers to possess ability, knowledge, character and devotion of the highest order. We know how important it is that our children shall receive their instruction and their impress during plastic years from men and women who can properly instruct and influence them.

In many respects the work of the teachers is the most important in the country, and they should be well paid. Most teachers, unfortunately, are not well paid. Being niggardly in this regard is a habit that a considerable part of the United States has fallen into. It is not only a bad habit, but it is also expensive; for a low standard of wages inevitably results in the quality of teachers deteriorating. The brightest men and women in the profession seek other lines. And the classrooms in these shortsighted communities are turned over to second-raters.

That means, of course, a generally inferior product turned out from the schools.

But a high standard of pay attracts high-class people; there is sharper competition for the teachers' positions, and the beneficial effect upon pupils is marked.

Of course, the child gets from the school what he or she puts into it. It is the teachers' business to develop the latent possibilities in the child's mind—that is to educate, which means to lead out.

Do you want this delicate and vitally important work done by incompetents or by experts?

There is only one answer. The way to get experts is to make the teaching profession attractive to capable, high-class men and women. Those who really understand this subject demand the BEST COMPENSATION for teachers.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE been observing with interest the treatment accorded little Miss Helen Terwilliger.

Helen, as you will undoubtedly remember, was the 13-year-old school girl who recently rebuked ex-President Taft for an error made while giving the oath of office to President Hoover.

Instead of saying "preserve, protect and defend," Mr. Taft said "preserve, maintain and protect." And little Helen, with her sharp ear tuned in, immediately pounced upon the error and put the large gentleman to rights.

Whereupon, with one accord, the citizens of this land have given the little girl a hand, not to mention sweet kisses and pats upon the head. And at any moment one may expect Congress to strike off a medal in her honor.

Now I like little girls.

I like them very much.

And I probably would like Helen if I knew her.

But I would not, for her own good, give her a sweet kiss or a pat on the head.

Rather I would be much inclined to grab her by the scruff of her pretty pink neck and sit her down—HARD—in a corner. And tell her to hush her fuss.

For I do not consider rebuking ex-Presidents of the United States one of the prerogatives of little girls.

I do not believe they should be encouraged in the practice.

And I will go still further and bet that if after all this idiotic applause someone doesn't take a rise out of Helen PRONTO she'll speedily become one of the most objectionable females on record.

I'm for this generation and their free, frank ways. I believe in encouraging their expression—but there's a limit. Wisdom does not always proceed "out of the mouths of babes and sucklings." Sometimes they give utterance to a lot of impertinent nonsense.

Helen's rebuke of ex-President Taft was impertinent nonsense.

It also reveals a grave lack of training in her sense of values, for which someone should be held responsible.

Here was a young American citizen observing, via the radio, the gravest official ceremony of our national life. A ceremony which should have inspired her with reverence for authority and love of land. Instead of which she busts out into smarty call-downs of a man who has been President and who is now chief justice of the United States of America. And gets clapped!

Which is a tragic commentary on our national intelligence!

We clapped Helen because we're going in for that brand of Americanism ourselves.

Sitting hairs—

Squabbling over trifles—

Sticking our noses where they don't belong—

Once we had an eagle as the insignia of this country—

A great, free, wide-winged eagle who viewed life from the clouds—

We'd better change that insignia—

We'd better adopt a mosquito instead—

It's more our size!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

There are persons who are so independent that you cannot depend upon them.—Spurgeon.

Fear not that thy life would come to an end, but rather fear that it shall never have a beginning.—Newman.

The worst of terrors is to believe that any one religion has the monopoly of goodness.—Renan.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 26—Thoughts while strolling: Why do restaurants always run out of lemon meringue pie? Fur shop sign: "Say it with sables!" And go into bankruptcy. Ona Munson. Not difficult on the eye. Silk limousine cushions for dogs—$30. What's become of Scott Fitzgerald? Not that I'm worried.

Patient souls who read books on windy bus tops. Sam Hellman, a St. Louis boy who made good in the city. Plays for "Four Weeks Only"—meaning they'll try to last that long. How do they get all that stuff in a delicatessen window? Joanne Eagels in 18-foot-high movie lights. Ah, there, Equity!

The Broadway drug stores featuring theatrical makeup. Wish I could borrow a Roxy usher uniform and descend on the old home town. Blue kitchens. Rotisseries. Waffle parlors. Sandwich bars with spiced pink hams in the window. And country sausage with fried apple rings. I'm drooling!

And see those luncheon specials: Banana float with whipped cream. Angel food with chocolate frosting. Apple pudding with golden sauce. H. N. Swanson, the collegiate looking editor of College Humor. In a pinch I can go three weeks without seeing another picture of Grover Whalen. He's too all-fired handsome.

Why do famous musicians dress funny? Those mystery novels, partly sealed. Shops where everybody is so busy being polite they forget to wait on you. Fewer dress suit renting parlors. Earl Sparling who prowls about queer, hidden corners for newspaper copy. And guillotine candidates. Orchestra leaders who feature themselves as lady killers.

IT is astonishing what New York can do with abandoned attics and garrets. The most comfortable and hospitable havens in town are several flights up through dimlit halls. The thrifty have found these cheaply rented places may, through the interior decorator's magic, be flossed up in amazing splendor at small cost. In the Villages, especially, the tenant has more air and sunshine in the roof-top aeries than could be secured at any cost uptown. And living in the attic no longer smacks of poverty. The best people roost high.

BUT the farthest north in profligacy was noted at a recent luncheon by one of those lads who achieved a Wall Street "killing." He invited 28 couples, sending each lady six orchids to which was attached a gold lighter monogrammed in chip diamonds. At each gentleman's plate was a woven gold and platinum cigarette case with inset monograms. Six years ago he was a night clerk in a hotel and likely he will be back twirling the register any day now.

ONE of those very shirty avenue traffic cops held up cross-town traffic for I don't know how long late the other evening while he leaned through the window of a limousine to chat with somebody, evidently important, which was all right. A cop has lonely moments. But he might have omitted his heavy sarcasm at the slowness of a humped-over fellow trying to read some place or other in a jerky flivver. He made me so mad I was tempted to walk right up to him and—business of pulling a punch—shake my finger.

THE HEARST PAPERS DEMAND FOR AMERICA

SCHOOLS—MORE SCHOOLS, BETTER SCHOOLS, more ADEQUATE and more MODERN school buildings; the best TEACHERS and the best COMPENSATION for teachers; a SCHOOL SEAT and a LIBERAL EDUCATION for every child in America, native or foreign born.

America is the great melting pot of the world, and the product of the melting pot must be competent, educated, loyal, moral AMERICAN CITIZENS.

1—That is the nation's duty to itself and its contribution to the social organization.

2—No politics in the schools, no race antagonism in the schools, no religious prejudice in the schools.

The schools are for all children; and all the children should there be taught and trained and graduated in that KNOWLEDGE WHICH IS POWER, and in an enlightened understanding of AMERICAN PRINCIPLES AND IDEALS.

The government of a democracy reposes in the hands of the people, and the success of that government, the progress, the prosperity, the perpetuation of the nation, depend upon the EDUCATION of the people, the ABILITY OF THE PEOPLE TO GOVERN.

Schools are the foundation stones of the republic. Make them STRONG and SOUND and SUFFICIENT.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

OLD poems tell far more always
Than what the poet penned;
Quaint line, outmoded word betrays
New meanings long years lend.
With time into the stanzas creeps
A rare revealing light,
Beneath whose rays no secret keeps
Its heritage of night.
Old poems tell the poet's tale
Of scenes alight with love
Or cruel as a winter's gale
Through which strange phantoms move.
But, ah! they tell far more than this;
In mirth or misery,
Outlined through tales of woe or bliss,
Untouched by years, undimmed by time.
We see the poet move
And through this mimic world of rhyme
We glimpse his hopes, his love!
